Czechs, French Mobilize Troops For War

FORCES GIRDED AGAINST PERIL OF NAZI ATTACK

Benes Orders Action As New Premier Warns Time Has Come To Defend Land

BY ROY PORTER
Associated Press Foreign Writer

PRAGUE, Sept. 24. — Czechoslovakia mobilized itself and an army estimated at 1,500,000 today against the danger of German invasion.

Fears, excitement and war preparations gripped the 20-year-old republic as she made ready for defense "with every means at her disposal."

Six hours were given to bring the normal standing army of 180,000 to nearly 10 times that figure.

France Mobilizes Reserves

France also mobilized 270,000 reserves in the last step before general mobilization, as evacuation of towns along the German frontier began.

In Czechoslovakia first line reserves and some second line reserves rushed to the colors. Military trucks rumbled, seemingly endlessly, through the crooked streets of this ancient capital.

All trains were reserved for the assembling soldiers. Excited enthusiasm burst forth as the nation sprang to arms upon announcement of the mobilization order.

President Eduard Benes ordered the preparations last night after Jan Syrovy, premier, army inspector-general and national hero, told his ministers, "the time has come for this republic to defend itself."

The nation was electrified by this announcement, broadcast after the Czech anthem was played:

"The most important and decisive moment has arrived.

"Success depends on all of you. Expend all your powers and your fortunes in defense of the state.

'Be Calm And Firm'

"Do all the state demands of you. Be calm and firm. Tolerate no prophet of gloom. Suppress fickleness. Our battle is just.

"It is just to battle for our freedom and independence. Free Czechoslovak lives."

Millions of Czechoslovaks had awaited tensely for that statement and received it with an enthusiasm contrasting sharply with the dejection of anger they felt over former Premier Milan Hodza's decision to surrender to Adolf Hitler's demands on Sudeten German areas.

Men rushed from restaurants, leaving meals unfinished. Thousands of men, women and children hurried into the streets, where they stood for hours cheering the departing soldiers. The soldiers cheered as loudly as anybody.

Everybody wanted to do something. Taxis were commandeered to help the troop movements. Street cars were stopped or rerouted. Automobiles and buses were filled with hurrying soldiers.

Daladier To Visit London

Two full classes were ordered to the colors this morning in Paris, pushing France's men under arms to considerably over the 2,000,000 mark.

At the same time it was reported that Premier Daladier would fly to London because the international situation growing from German efforts to take over Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland had become much worse.

The reports circulating in chamber of deputies' circles said the premier would leave for a conference with Prime Minister Chamberlain, who has returned from his talks with Hitler at Godesberg.

Authorities ordered first the evacuation of Bouzonville's 1,200 citizens. The town, five miles from the Saarland German frontier, was being turned over to the army as a base for one extension of the Maginot line.

Today's partial mobilization order, which completed France's vital covering troops that protect the country during general mobilization, applied to classes which were released from training last October and October 1936. They may be recalled automatically by the army with command without the formality of ministerial decree.

Navy Has Filled Quota

The reservists called today went to the army and to the air force.

FLEE WAR AREA, AMERICANS TOLD

U.S. Minister Advises Move; Treasury Acts In Crisis

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 — A request that Americans leave Czechoslovakia and a quickened pace in the treasury's preparations to meet international financial problems which might ensue from a European war evidenced today the administration's apprehension over the latest turn in the German-Czech crisis.

The state department said Wilbur J. Carr, minister at Prague, had advised Americans to get out of Czechoslovakia immediately because "conditions were such that at any time it might become impossible for them to leave."

5,190 Americans Listed

Department records list 5,190 Americans as residents in Czechoslovakia. Hundreds more may be there as tourists.

Among treasury developments were these:

1. It deposited $90,000,000 of gold certificates in three federal reserve banks, marking the first time since April that any of its huge gold accumulation had been converted into cash. This served to increase the cash balance the treasury will have available in the event a war demoralizes money markets temporarily.

2. Jacob Viner, University of Chicago economist who resigned recently as a treasury aid, was recalled to advise on financial aspects of the European situation.

STOCKS REVIVE FROM WAR TENSION LOSSES

Market Rallies After Drop Of $1 To $3 A Share

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24. — The stock market recovered quickly today from another fit of nerves over the tension in Europe.

Losses of $1 to $3 a share in a selling flurry in earlier trading were largely cancelled, and a few shares rose above yesterday's final prices, as Wall Street took a more hopeful view of the news from abroad.

The statement of Premier Mussolini at a speech in Italy that Reichsfuehrer Hitler had given Czechoslovakia until Oct. 1 to meet his demands, traders felt, provided a breathing spell.

Major securities markets in Europe were closed for the usual Saturday holiday, with the exception of Amsterdam, where prices were depressed again in advance of the opening in New York.

Prices in New York finished a little under the best levels of the late recovery.

Wheat whirled up sharply for a time, but before the Chicago market closed, a good part of the gain was lost.

BELLICOSE DUCE ATTACKS BENES, 'STUPID' LEAGUE

Mussolini Discloses Hitler Has Set Oct. 1 Deadline For Czech's Answer

By The Associated Press.

BELLUNO, Italy, Sept. 24.—Premier Mussolini roused a Fascist crowd to a roar of excitement today with a double-barrelled attack on the league of nations and Czechoslovakia.

Il Duce spoke here after telling 300,000 cheering blackshirts at Padua that Reichsfuehrer Hitler had sent a request to Czechoslovakia to accept his terms by Oct. 1 and that Italy must be ready for any eventualities.

His mention of Geneva and President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia evoked boos and catcalls that lasted almost four minutes.

The premier, bellowing to make himself heard above the roar, declared, "Our adversaries across the Alps are too stupid to fight." He said they were at least a quarter of a century behind the times.

"During this time," he shouted "Italy has tempered herself in the fire of four wars. For this reason we will conquer also in the future."

Recalls League Action

He reminded Italy that the league of nations' economic boycott during the Italo-Ethiopian war—sanctions—were decided at Geneva by '52 nations presided over by the present president" of Czechoslovakia. The crowd jeered.

"Absolutely ridiculous alternatives are being circulated," Mussolini continued. "Butter or cannon. Butter or cannon, which have we chosen?'

"Cannon," the crowd chorused.

"But cannon themselves," Il Duce answered, "even though constructed of thoroughly tempered steel would be an inert matter if it were not for men of the same metal.

Mussolini, in his Padua speech, did not detail the terms of the German demand. Presumably they were for the outright surrender of Sudeten territory.

The Duce cautioned his Fascist followers to be ready for war.

It would be a "very grave error," he said, if the "patient attitude of Germany should be interpreted falsely," indicating Hitler could not be expected to take fright.

Lauds Berlin's Attitude

Mussolini declared Berlin had manifested "supreme moderation." He said:

"Germany has sent requests to Prague and has given until Oct. 1 for a reply. There are, therefore, exactly six days for the Prague government to resume again a way of sanity, for it would be truly absurd and even criminal that Europe's millions should be hurled against one another, simply to maintain the feudal lordship of Benes" (president of Czechoslovakia.)

"We know the democratic regimes fear responsibility because each is trying to unload it on the opposition party or on his neighbor.

"In the so-called totalitarian regime this shifting of responsibility is impossible. The problem now placed before the consciences of the people must be settled in integral and definitive manner.

"There is time for this solution, and if the conflict must nevertheless break out there is a possibility of localizing it.

"But it happens in these days that more or less influential parties and tendencies in western countries contend that this is the opportune moment to take a stand and settle accounts with the totalitarian states.

"In this case these tendencies and parties will find themselves confronted by two countries, but

Special To The Review.

LISBON, Sept. 24—Eighteen witnesses have been called to testify before the grand jury when the group convenes again Monday after the week-end recess.

The session opened last Monday with 40 cases on the docket. New cases in the meanwhile raised the docket to 44. The jury is said to be well along and a report is expected Wednesday.

Two first degree murder cases were believed to have been disposed of before the recess.

Czech, Nazi Reports Conflict On Tone Of Hitler's Demands

Prague Circles Claim Terms Request Satisfaction For Hungary And Poland

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 24. — Official Czechoslovak circles said Hitler's terms for peaceful settlement of the crisis called for satisfaction of Hungarian and Polish minority claims along with those of Sudeten Germans.

They said additional terms were:

1. German occupation before Oct. 1 of all Sudeten areas where more than 75 percent of the population is German;

2. Evacuation of all Czechoslovak soldiers and civil servants from these areas by the same date;

3. A plebiscite in remaining Sudeten districts in which the inhabitants would vote on whether they wanted to go with Germany or remain in Czechoslovakia.

Chamberlain Returns

Prime Minister Chamberlain, returning from his second historic peace mission to Hitler, declared today that on peaceful solution of the Czechoslovak problem "turns the peace of Europe in our time."

Only about 200 persons greeted the premier at Heston airport in contrast to the vast cheering throng which speeded him away on his first mission to Germany, Sept. 15.

The British home fleet today unexpectedly put to sea from Ivergordon, where it had been based for maneuvers for some weeks.

Informant Says Conciliatory Wording Of Memorandum Offers Peace Basis

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
[Copyright, 1938, By The Associated Press.]

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—A man who saw a copy of Adolf Hitler's memorandum to Prime Minister Chamberlain said today it was most conciliatory in tone and gave a basis for peaceful solution.

This informant said Hitler in no way included Polish and Hungarian demands on Czechoslovakia in the memorandum, given to Chamberlain at Godesberg as Germany's final stand on the Czechoslovak question.

In fact, the informant stated, these demands were not discussed by Chamberlain and Hitler at the meeting.

8-Day Period Fixed

Eight days, the informant said, are envisaged for peaceful handing over of the Sudeten territory to Germany.

This informant said he was pledged on oath not to give this correspondent direct quotations from the text of the memorandum.

Hitler's demands, he said, were even less than those made at the meeting of Hitler and Chamberlain at Berchtesgaden Sept. 15.

Meanwhile, a semi-official press release observed that Hitler, in the memorandum, once more put Germany's demands i.. the most precise terms possible and in such a manner that it was apparent Germany did everything possible to

GALE-TORN EAST MOPS UP DEBRIS

Rehabilitation Launched As Flood Threats Abate

By The Associated Press.

Abating floods today gave the north Atlantic states time to bury their hurricane dead—nearly 500 in number—and begin the sorry task of rehabilitating areas stricken by the worst storm disaster to befall the nation in a decade.

Authorities in the seven afflicted states and at Washington, D. C., mobilized every available resource of man and money.

Most pressing of the problems in mopping up after Wednesday's hurricane—a scimitar of wind and tide that cost half a billion dollars in property damage—was the housing and feeding of 12,000 distressed families in New York, New Jersey and New England.

Health Measures Taken

Prompt emergency health measures by the Red Cross and other relief agencies apparently had ended the menace of the storm's grimmest aftermath—epidemic disease.

Over the flood-besieged 7-state sector, an army of 100,000 WPA workers and thousands of army and national guard troops and survivor volunteers — thoughtless of their own grief—poked through debris for the dead. Scores still were missing.

Red Cross officials expressed belief that many bodies, buried beneath tons of shifting sand, never would be found. The battering power of 30-foot tidal waves cut new inlets in many places along the coast and ocean water flowed over wreckage thought to hold further dead.

Forecasts of generally fair weather accompanied the subsiding of flooded rivers in New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Hartford Passes Crisis

Danger also lessened at Hartford, Conn., the "insurance capital," as the roaring Connecticut apparently passed its crest. A tenth of the city was under still water, however.

Little Rhode Island remained the focal point of relief efforts and extraordinary measures were taken to prevent pillaging of stores and looting of the dead. Flooded Providence, Woonsocket and Westerly, where more than 100 died, were under martial law.

The WPA dispatched 5,000 workers for rescue duty in answer to an appeal by Gov. Quinn, who estimated damage in the state at $100,000,000.

The Red Cross sought public donation today of at least $500,000 for the storm and flood sufferers.

CLOCKS GO BACK AN HOUR SUNDAY

Midland Folks, 30,000,000 Others Quit Daylight Time

While Pennsylvania residents and those East Liverpool people who work in Midland are getting in an extra hour of sleep tonight to make up for that lost in the spring, the rest of us will have to get along with the usual amount but that doesn't mean escape from the puzzling procedure of getting some 30,000,000 persons and 17 states back on standard time.

Daylight saving time ends at 1 a. m. Sunday.

There will be plenty of individuals who, ignoring the time change because they have been operating on standard time all summer, will have their tempers ruffled when they fail to get their favorite radio program at the regular time.

Radio Programs Change

As most network broadcasts originate in New York, all stations are forced to alter their entire schedules.

Then there will be those inconvenienced by unreckoned changes in the time of arrival and departure of trains, interurban street cars and buses.

The time change will affect Homer Laughlin and Edwin M. Knowles pottery employes. Office workers of both firms will go to their desks half an hour later as their amended daylight saving program comes to an end. Those working in plants of the former concern which operates one shift, also will report half an hour later.

Train schedules on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh divisions will be altered Monday.

Westbound train 479 from Pittsburgh to Wellsville, will arrive here at 8:44 a. m. instead of 7:44. By the new schedule this train will leave Pittsburgh at 7 a. m. instead of 6.

HOPKINS 'FIRES' WPA HEAD IN NEW MEXICO

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, announced as he left last night by airliner for storm damaged New England that he had discharged Fred Healy, WPA administrator in New Mexico.

His telegram to Healy read:

"Effective Sept. 24 your services as state administrator of the New Mexico WPA are hereby terminated because you have permitted local political interference with the WPA program, resulting in inefficiency and a failure to obtain the objective of the program."

Healy was unavailable for comment.

SERINO MURDER HEARING HEADS FOR JURY TODAY

Defense Closes Testimony Quickly In Surprise Step At Conn Death Trial

By The Associated Press.

CADIZ, O., Sept. 24.—The defense suddenly closed its case in the Peter Serino murder trial today, shortly after calling the defendant to the stand for a 15 minute questioning.

Judge Barclay W. Moore recessed court briefly and the state prepared to call rebuttal witnesses.

Closing of the defense testimony was a surprise. No attempt was made to present an alibi as to Serino's whereabouts Sept. 27, 1937, the day State Highway Patrolman George Conn was slain near Freeport.

Serino Denies Story

In his brief stay on the stand, Serino denied all of Charles Ford's story and said he never knew Booker Johnson, indicted in the killing with Bernard Masulla, himself, Ford and a Bernice Bradley.

Ford, the star state witness, had told a detailed story of the roadside killing, labelling Serino as the driver of the "death car."

With state and defense attorneys making closing arguments, the case is expected to reach the jury late this afternoon.

Bernard Masulla, 22, described by Ford as the chief "trigger man," and Booker Johnson, 42, Negro, among the five indicted in the killing, said as defense witnesses yesterday that Ford's testimony was false.

Masulla said he was a friend of Serino and of a Bernice Bradley, the fifth person under indictment, but claimed he was in Pittsburgh when Conn was slain.

Rebuttal Witnesses Set

Johnson, who said he was in Newark, O., that day, denied acquaintance with any of the accused. Masulla, attacking Ford's statement that the gang transported women for immoral purposes, denied he procured and administered a "shot in the arm" to a protesting Delaware, O., victim who Ford said was taken to Steubenville.

Defense counsel placed on the stand other witnesses from Pittsburgh, Steubenville and Huntington, W. Va., who denied Ford's narative of white slavery and murder.

Attorney Jesse K. George said he would prove Serino was with his mother in Easton, Pa., when the patrolman was felled as he stopped to question occupants of a parked automobile.

Prosecutor Fred Orum announced several rebuttal witnesses would testify for the state.

Potters Win, Bengals Lose

EAST LIVERPOOL football fans were treated to a brilliant display of offensive fireworks Friday night as the local high school eleven overpowered East Palestine 39-0.

The Potters were equally efficient at rushing the ball and passing it, netting more than 200 yards in the first instance and completing 11 of 18 forward passes for 198 yards.

Coach Morbito used three full teams and uncovered a number of potential stars for both the line and backfield.

The victory, following last week's 19-7 triumph over Lisbon, heightened prospects for success in battles with the tough opponents coming up. Akron West, Salem and New Philadelphia elevens of high caliber, will be met on the next three week-ends.

Salem crushed Sebring by the same score the Potters registered, New Philadelphia topped Zanesville by three touchdowns and Akron West was nosed out by St. Vincent, 8-7, in a bitter Rubber City fray.

Wellsville's inexperienced Bengals didn't fare so well, getting their tail twisted by a heavy Ellwood City, Pa., eleven, 32-0.

Two district games Friday afternoon saw Chester in a 6-6 deadlock with its alumni and Columbiana triumphant over Salineville, 14-0.

Civic Leaders Of Two Communities Join In Praising Transaction

J. T. CROXALL, president of the East Liverpool Chamber of Commerce—"The sale of the Chester bridge is a splendid thing, and is of great benefit to the community. Public highways and bridges should be under the jurisdiction of the state or federal government, and not in private ownership.

"The public should be very grateful to the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction co. for services given in the past and for the way the bridge has been maintained."

W. W. INGRAM, Chester attorney —"The Ohio bridge act provides that bridge revenue shall be used for maintenance and redemption of purchase price bonds with the ultimate object of bridge transportation free. Quite naturally I favor this, as it develops a continous community with equal advantages."

HOWARD GODDARD, owner of Goddard Bakery, Chester — "We favor the deal. It has worked out with satisfaction in other places and certainly should benefit this community. We are for it 100 percent."

BEN L. BENNETT, East Liverpool attorney—"Acquisition of the bridge is a step in the right direction and will result beneficially to the city of East Liverpool, as it will eventually mean abandonment of tolls, thus assuring the continuation of transcontinental traffic through our city."

WILLIAM H. VODREY, East Liverpool attorney—"A free bridge will be of benefit to the community. The present ownership and management has given the community the best possible service."

W. O. BLOOR, chairman of the merchants division of the East Liverpool Chamber of Commerce — "The purchase will prove a great benefit to local merchants. We are all looking forward to the time when travel over the bridge will be free."

T. H. FISHER, president of the First National bank of East Liverpool—"Rehabilitation of the bridge has given East Liverpool one of the finest and most substantial structures in the country.

"Its usefulness is assured and its permanency guaranteed by reason of having been taken over by the bridge commission of the state of Ohio.

"It will prevent other bridges from being built in locations unfavorable to the city.

"We can rest assured that the bridge will continue in good management and ultimately will work to the best interest of the entire community."

C. V. BEATTY, East Liverpool contractor—"I feel that this move is a wonderful thing, and undoubtedly will prove to be of public benefit. I believe in free bridges."

W. HARRY LEWIS of Indiana ave., Chester, councilman and former town clerk—"State ownership of the bridge will be a good thing because it will bring Chester and East Liverpool closer together to the benefit of both."

H. N. HARKER, president of the Harker Pottery Co. of Chester — "I am very pleased with the sale. It should have been consummated long ago. I feel it is just as important for the state to own a bridge over which one of its highways are routed as it is to own the highways."

ROBERT A. DOUGLASS, secretary of the Hancock County Federal Savings and Loan association of Chester—"State ownership will be of a great benefit to both communities which the bridge joins because eventually it will be free."

STANDARD TO CUT GAS HALF-CENT ON MONDAY

Here's good news for motorists!

The Standard Oil Co. today announced a half-cent a gallon reduction on gasoline, effective Monday. Regular motor fuel will sell for 17½ cents a gallon while ethyl and high-test gasoline will retail for 19½ cents.

While the half-cent reduction prevails throughout the state motor fuel prices vary however. Independents are expected to match the reductions.

TRACTION FIRM SELLS TO STATE FOR $2,135,000

Revenue Bonds To Be Sold; Span Expected To Be Toll Free In 10 Years

The state of Ohio, through its bridge commission, announced today it had purchased from the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction Co. the bridge which crosses the Ohio river between East Liverpool and Chester.

The purchase price was $2,135,000, including all expense of acquisition.

The deal was consummated after months of negotiations between Nick Stevens of Oak Harbor, chairman, George C. Hill of Sandusky and Oscar P. Grischy of Cincinnati, representing the commission, and officials of the traction company, and the state took over operation this morning.

Bridge revenue bonds in the amount of the purchase price bearing interest at 3½ percent, due in 15 years, will be offered at public sale to the highest bidder.

Toll Free In 10 Years

The commission advised that based upon present revenues, the bridge, one of the best revenue producers on the Ohio river with a low maintenance cost due to its having been completely rebuilt, should become toll free within 10 years.

Robert A. Schiffer, secretary-general manager of the commission who today placed deeds of record in Columbiana county, Ohio, and Hancock county, West Virginia, announced that temporarily toll charges would remain unchanged.

He said that state engineers may make slight adjustments in the near future and that the plan was to reduce tolls as the bonds were retired.

The bridge, which is a part of the Lincoln highway, U. S. route 30, one of the foremost transcontinental routes in the United States, has just been rehabilitated and remodeled at a cost of approximately $500,000. During the last year, gross revenues reached almost the $300,000 mark and show a continuing increase from year to year.

State Bridge Bonds Retired

The East Liverpool - Chester bridge is one of several acquired by the state commission since its creation by the general assembly and coincidental with the purchase here, the commission announced the retirement of $33,000 in bonds on the Sandusky Bay bridge and $17,000 bonds on the Ft. Steuben bridge at Steubenville, making a total of $439,000 retired on the former and $164,000 on the latter. The commission also operates the Pomeroy Mason bridge at Pomeroy, O.

At the time of the creation of the state bridge commission of Ohio there were 20 toll bridges in the hands of private owners. Today there remains only five privately owned outside of the Wheeling, W. Va., district and Cincinnati.

In the acquirement of all bridges by the commission the purchase price is procured from the sale of bridge revenue bonds, without any cost or liability to the taxpayers of the state of Ohio. The net revenue from tolls received from the bridges are used to retire the bond issues and upon retirement of all bonds the bridges become free to the traveling public and become a part of the highway system to be maintained jointly, in this instance, by Ohio and West Virginia.

Constructed In 1897

The commission originally was authorized to negotiate only for intra-state bridges but after the purchase of the Sandusky Bay span was empowered by supplemental legislative authority to acquire inter-state bridges as well.

The Chester bridge was first erected in 1897 by J. E. McDonald, the late W. L. Smith and the late A. M. Mackall, all of East Liverpool, and the late George Rust of Cleveland, Jutte & Co. of Pittsburgh was the builder and Herman Laub the engineer.

E. K. Morse of Pittsburgh, consultant engineer for the traction company for 25 years, and C. M. Neeld, also of Pittsburgh, were in charge of the recent reconstruc-

M'NAIR CLAIMS OHIO OVERTAXED IN BAR ADDRESS

Pittsburgh's Former Mayor 'Kids' Attorneys In Talk At Wellsville Dinner

Ohio has too many taxes and they are being assessed in the wrong manner, William N. McNair, colorful former Pittsburgh mayor and exponent of the single tax plan, told an audience of about 75 at a dinner meeting of the Columbiana County Bar association and their friends in the First United Presbyterian church in Wellsville Friday night.

"Buy a vacant lot in Pittsburgh and you pay taxes, heavy taxes on it. But put a building on the lot and you cut your taxes in half. That's the way we encourage building and improvements in the city of Pittsburgh," he said.

For more than 35 minutes the mayor held the floor, "wise-cracking" now and then on politics, grand juries, numbers writers and not sparing members of the legal profession.

"I'm against grand juries every good Democrat should be against them," Mr. McNair said. "I ran for a good job, was elected, along came a grand jury and I had to quit," he commented, referring to his resignation as mayor after a stormy regime a couple of years ago.

"Politics is a way of making a living," he continued. "I used to be a reformer but after I was in the game for a while I changed my mind. I used to belong to the party of Jefferson before it went new deal

"Accidents happen when you are least expecting it. My name was put on the ballot in Pittsburgh just as a joke. Along came the landslide. People woke up the next morning and said they had heard of Roosevelt but 'who is this McNair?' They had never heard of me."

Pittsburgh, he said, encourages industries by reducing taxes on factories.

"In Ohio you have a sales tax, a property tax on stocks and other forms of taxes which the consumer must pay. Come to Pittsburgh and you won't have to pay taxes — in fact you couldn't pay them if you wanted to.

"Every city has its vacant lots, factory sites which would be making money for the owner. The man who owns the lot where the Kaufman store in Pittsburgh stands gets $800 a day just for the use of his land. When Kaufman's built its skyscraper it improved the lot and all the property around it."

Attorney Boyd Presides

Charles Boyd, president of the County bar association, presided at the meeting and introduced Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones also of Wellsville who was toastmaster.

Judges Arthur L. Hopper and Carl L. Weinman of the Jefferson county common pleas courts spoke briefly. They praised the ability of Judge Lones. The latter invited members of the Columbiana county bar to attend a regional meeting at Steubenville on Oct. 16.

S. E. Daw superintendent of the Wellsville public schools, referred to Judge Lones as "Wellsville's first citizen" and urged the legal profession to "blaze the trail of American democracy."

Mayor Howard L. Kelley of Wellsville welcomed the attorneys, stating that it had been 30 years since the bar association held a meeting in the city. Short talks were made by Rev. Isaac K. Teal pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and Rev. C. F. Kenneweg pastor of the First United Presbyterian church. The latter also pronounced the invocation.

John Coleman of East Liverpool, clerk of the municipal court, sang. He was accompanied by Joseph Kinney.

STATE'S DEMOCRATIC WOMEN PRESS UNITY

Mrs. Jaster Requests Solid Front In Fall Balloting

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 24—A new plea for unity within the Democratic party came today on the heels of an unprecedented state convention and adoption of a platform that struck at the administration of Gov. Martin L. Davey.

The Federated Democratic Women of Ohio met in one-day session after two of their members urged in talks yesterday that primary differences be forgotten and all groups support the ticket.

Mrs. John J. Jaster Jr., Ohio national committeewoman, told a group of women and county workers:

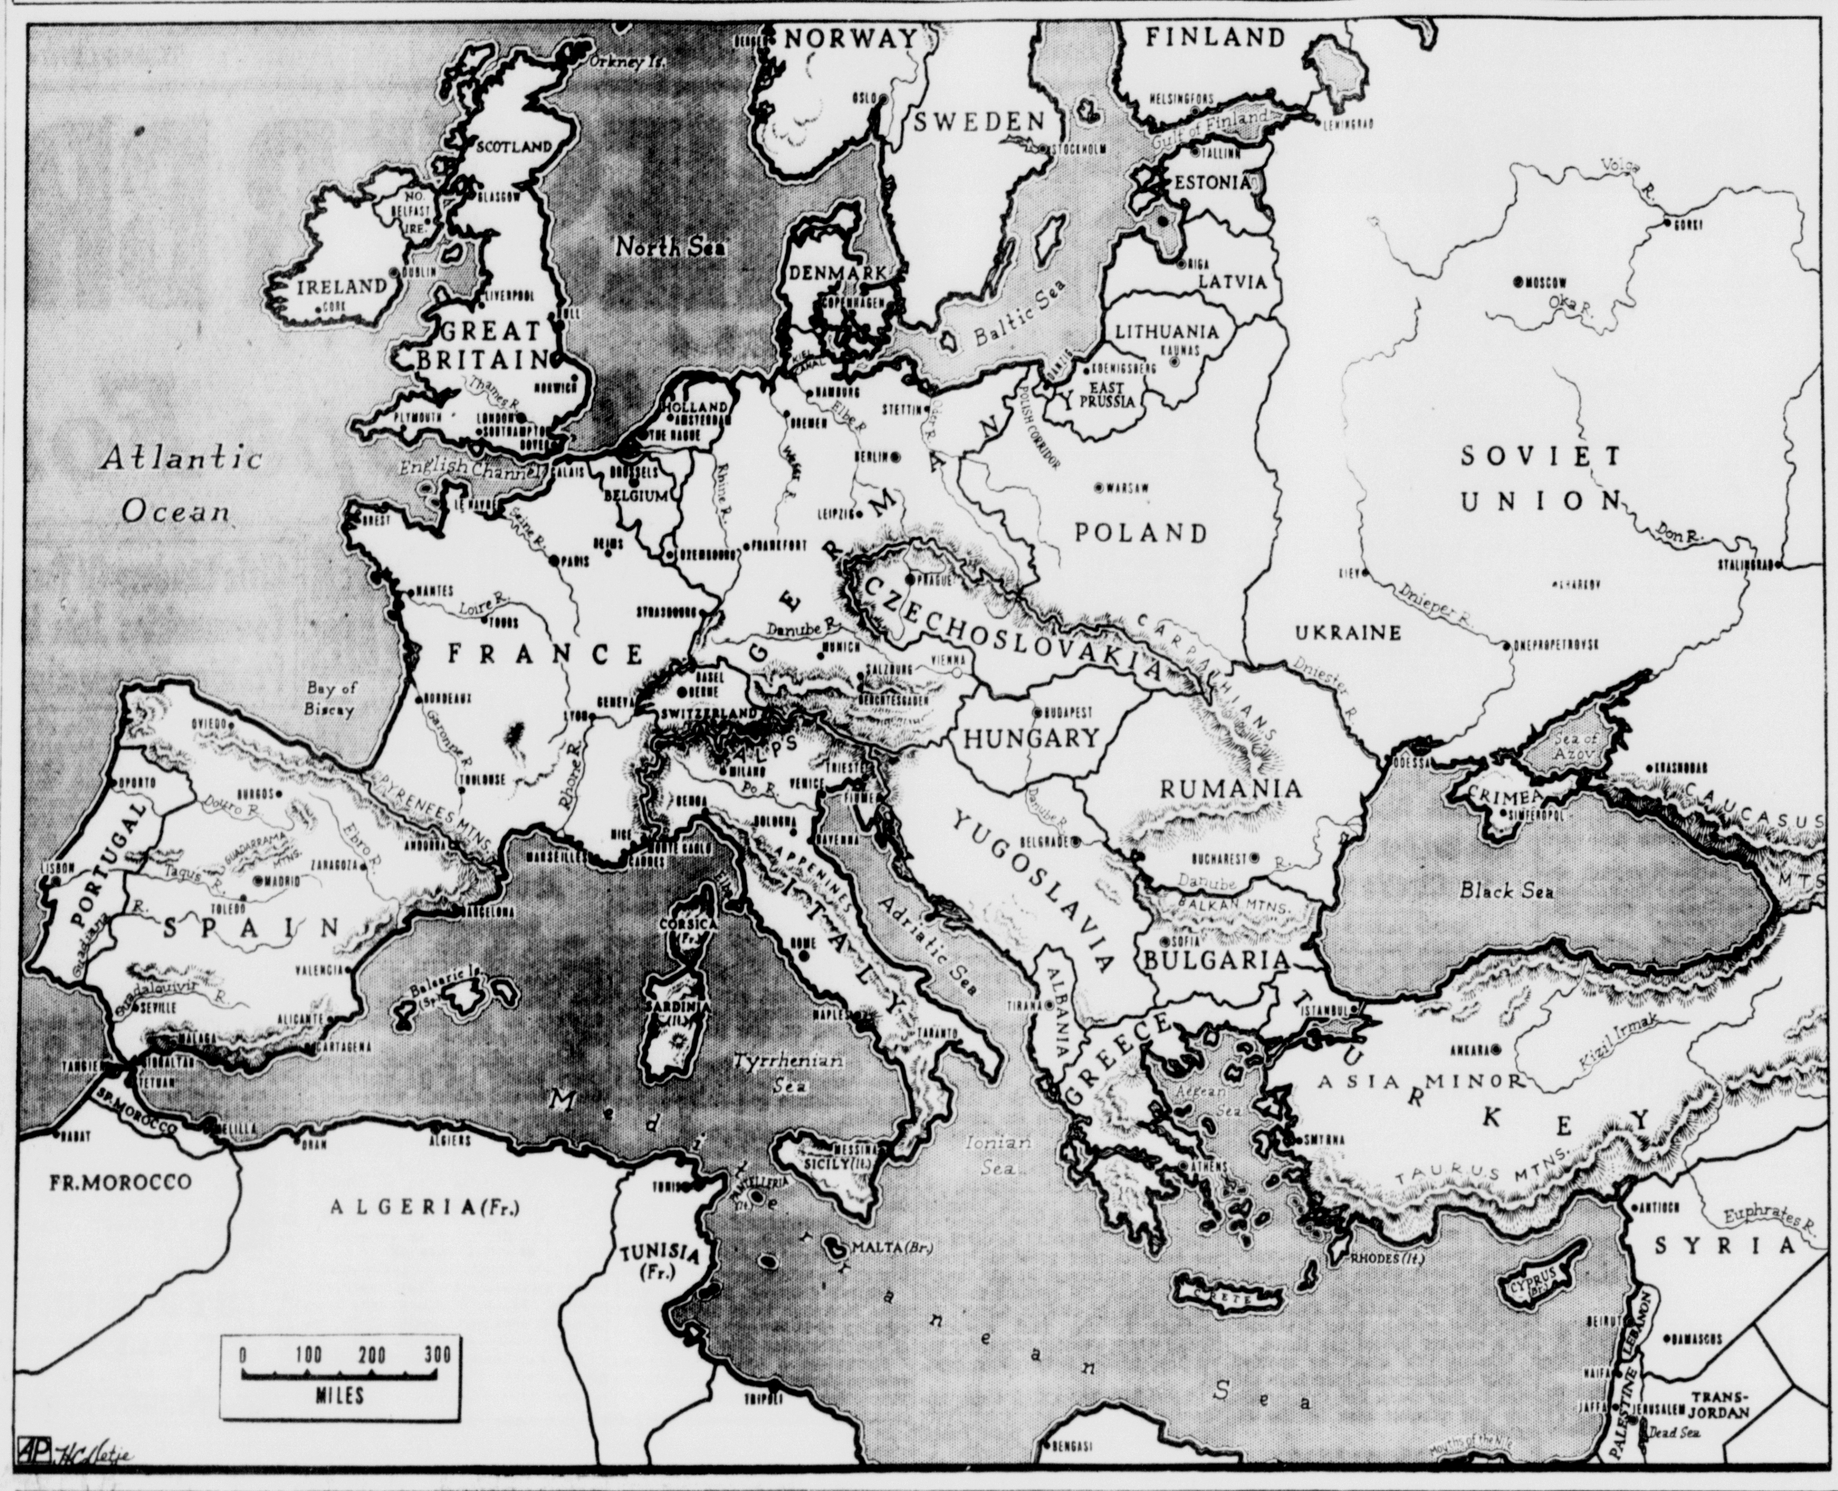

"I hope that all of you who have so enthusiastically worked for Gov. Davey will follow my example and be 100 percent for the Democratic ticket x x x. There are no differences now. We are all Democrats."

Meanwhile, the executive board of the Ohio Federation of Labor spurned the suggestion of President William Green of the American Federation of Labor that the state organization support Sawyer and approve a resolution declaring that the Ohio units should adhere to a "traditional" policy of non-partisanship.

At Coshocton Green asserted today that refusal of the Ohio Federation of Labor to follow his suggestion and indorse Sawyer did not mean a break between the state and national bodies.

"It is not a split, just a difference of opinion," the labor leader said.

PWA GRANTS $17,509 FOR ROAD IN COUNTY

New Waterford - Palestine Stretch To Be Paved

Special To The Review.

LISBON, Sept. 24.—The public works administration today in Washington authorized a grant of $17,509 to Columbiana county for the improvement of the New Waterford-East Palestine rd, as a county road project.

The county will advertise Monday for bids. Specifications call for grading, draining and surfacing. The road is to be 0.99 mile long, 20 feet wide with a 36-foot roadway, and is to be paved either with cement, concrete or waterbound macadam.

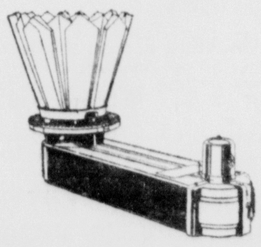

The cost with the macadam paving, as estimated by county engineers, is $28,327. The cost with concrete is estimated at $37,167.35. The county will pay the cost above the PWA grant.

Work is to start Nov. 15 and is to be completed within 130 working days. It will be done entirely by contractors. A bridge in the road, which was formerly unimproved, also has been renewed as a PWA project.

far-reaching British war preparations.

The commander-in-chief was known to have made hurried preparations yesterday to put the fleet sea at a moment's notice.

In addition, naval reserves were quietly called up to bring the ships' crews to full strength.

40 Ships Believed Involved

The movement of the fleet was described by the admiralty as "not an emergency measure" and was made under direct orders of the commander-in-chief, Admiral Sir Charles Forbes.

Some 40 ships were believed involved in the maneuvers.

Whatever the reason for the surprise movement, it put a large array of British warships in a strategic place in the North sea for quick action in the event of war.

At the same time the Mediterranean fleet concentrated 33 warships at Alexandria, Egypt, ready to move at a moment's notice.

Previously various units of the southern fleet had scattered through the Mediterranean on courtesy visits, which made mobilization, if such were done, extremely slow.

Great crowds gathered in Downing st. this morning as cabinet members came to their offices. Police cleared the street.

Hitler Makes Final Demands

Men paraded adjoining Whitehall st. bearing signs on their backs demanding the recall of parliament. Others distributed handbills urging support for Czechoslovakia.

Europe, expecting and fearing war, was preparing.

The end of peace talks between Chamberlain and Hitler was far from reassuring.

Chamberlain left the Godesberg conference last night with Hitler's "final" demands, said in London to include immediate demobilization of the Czechoslovak army and occupation of Sudetenland by either Sudeten or German troops.

There was no mention of British support from these demands.

And it was doubted here that the new Czechoslovak military regime was in any mood to capitulate further to any demands by either Chamberlain or Hitler.

Britain called an emergency session of the cabinet to hear the prime minister's report on the Godesberg conversations.

Navy Cancels All Leaves

The British navy cancelled all leaves. The army and the air force also were said to have taken "certain precautions."

France rushed more men to guard her frontiers and ordered partial mobilization, warning that any invasion of Czechoslovakia would mean war.

Soviet Russia urgently warned Poland to keep her troops off Czechoslovak soil, asserting such action would result in immediate cancellation of the Soviet non-aggression pact with Warsaw.

Anti-aircraft guns were mounted buildings in Berlin.

Hungary called reserves to the colors, although denying general mobilization had been ordered.

And in Prague, where the decision of war or peace now lies as a result of Hitler's new demands, all men of military age were called into service by a general mobilization order. Gas masks were distributed to the populace and automobiles, airplanes and even horses were requisitioned for the army.

Chamberlain was said to have made it clear to Hitler he would not press Czechoslovakia to yield to the fuehrer's new demands, but would merely convey them to the Prague government.

If Prague refuses to make further concessions, Germany is expected to order her troops to march.

Chamberlain plainly showed the strain of the last two days as he stood in the bright mountain sunshine in front of his hotel at Godesberg before the departure and told a small crowd he was "exceedingly grateful" for his welcome.

In a statement, the prime minister said:

"The communique issued last night was, of course, an agreed communique.

"I am not in a position now to add to it. I am returning to London where I shall at once consult with my colleagues.

"During the next few days there is grave responsibility upon everyone concerned to consider very carefully the issues that are at stake.

"We must still make great efforts to save the peace of Europe."

Strikers Reject Company Plan

Relatives Of Several Here Tell Of Menace In Hurricane Sector

RESTORED communication into the New England states today brought assuring word to several in East Liverpool that relatives in the hurricane-stricken area had survived the disaster, while still others have not been heard from.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Goodwin talked briefly with their son, Dr. Robert H. Goodwin of New Bedford, in a telephone conversation Thursday night. They were unable to communicate Friday night.

They learned that the Goodwin summer home had been filled by the tide. The Goodwins move into their permanent residence, safe from the shoreline, Oct. 1.

Mrs. Arthur T. Hardy of near Stonington, Conn., Mr. Charles F. Goodwin's sister, witnessed flood damage but is safe.

Mrs. William H. Vodrey Jr. telephoned her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert K. Stroud of Great Neck, L. I., and learned that they were safe.

Although their home is on the north shore, hit less hard than the south shore of the island, trees more than 100 years old were felled and the house of a neighbor of the Strouds was damaged when a tree fell on the roof.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Folger, the latter the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. McDonald, reside on Nantucket Island, R. I., and have not yet notified the McDonalds concerning the flood damage on the island.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Patterson, in the east with their daughter, Betty, who attends Bradford academy, Bradford, Mass., are believed safe, as well as Virginia Purinton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alwyn C. Purinton, also a student in New England.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Hill have not received word from their daughter, Mrs. W. S. Bateman, who resides atop a bluff at Newport, R. I., thought to be a safe location in spite of damage at Newport.

bring about a peaceful solution.

Hitler's memorandum, the press release continued, contained suggestions for carrying out what already has been conceded to Germany by Britain and France and what was accepted by the Czechoslovak government of Milan Hodza before his resignation.

Hitler's memorandum, however, was said to be positively Germany's last offer to Czechoslovakia.

Czechs Hold Own Fate

If the Czehoslovaks now decline, the press release said, they would carry the responsibility for all that might follow.

If the Czechs agree, peace would be preserved, it stated. (Louis P. Lochner, author of this dispatch, gave on Sept. 16 the first authoritative account of what Hitler's demands at Berchtesgaden were. They were:

(1. Cession to Germany of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten German area;

(2. Binding assurances that Czechoslovakia's foreign policy be in harmony with Germany's;

(3. Coordination, after German annexation of Sudetenland, of what is left of Czechoslovakia with Germany's economic system—Germany for instance, to have final word on the output of the great Czechoslovak Skoda munition works and where it is sent.)

DNB (official German news agency) said today the Sudeten German Free Corps army arrested 600 Czechs as hostages at the frontier, threatening to shoot them if Sudeten towns were shelled.

Educator Urges Bankers To Improve Letters

MEDIOCRE correspondence retards American business methods, best in the world in other respects, Dr. Felix Held, secretary of the College of Commerce, Ohio State university, told almost 300 members of Group Eight, Ohio Bankers association, holding its 32nd annual meeting Friday night at the East Liverpool Country club.

Bankers excel in personal meetings, but fall short in writing of business letters, the speaker told the dinner guests at the close of an afternoon-evening gathering.

Other speakers were H. E. Cook, president of the Ohio Bankers association and president of the National bank at Bucyrus; S. H. Squire, state superintendent of banks, and D. M. Auch, secretary of the Second National bank, Bucyrus.

Presiding over the after-dinner speaking program and the afternoon business meeting was George J. Barthold, chairman, Group Eight, and vice president and treasurer of the Miners and Mechanics Savings and Trust Co. of Steubenville. He was elected to a three-year term last year in the convention at Steubenville.

Elected to the executive committee in the business session were: Columbiana county, L. S. Firestone, president of the Firestone bank, Lisbon, replacing L. H. Colley, cashier of the First National bank of Salem; Holmes county, Bernard Klick, cashier, Killbuck Savings Bank Co., Killbuck, replacing D. A. Carey, vice president and cashier of the Adams bank, Millersburg; Jefferson county, R. E. Davidson, secretary Brilliant Bank and Savings Co., replacing C. J. Thompson, cashier, First National bank, Dillonvale, and Stark county, A. J. Waltz, president and chairman of the board of directors of the Ohio-Merchants Trust Co., Massillon, replacing F. R. Patterson, cashier, The Minerva Savings and Bank Co., Minerva.

"An effective letter is one that accomplishes its purpose and makes, or keeps, a friend," Dr. Held explained. "The writer must express himself in a smooth and interesting manner, developing the point of the letter logically. He also must fit it to the personality of the receiver."

Letter-writing is just as important in banker-customer relations as personal meetings, but more difficult to handle, the assembly learned. The sender must realize the job his letter has to do; he must analyze the recipient and approach him accordingly.

"You must transfer your idea to the other man's head," Dr. Held said. "A letter is 'silent advertising.' It leaves a good or a bad taste with the recipient."

"The person who receives a letter that is not clear or is inaccurate feels this way: 'If those people cannot supervise their letter-writing, can they supervise their business, or their product?" Dr. Held continued.

"I know that business men are too busy to prepare an outline of a letter in dictation, but before a man begins a letter, he should have the end in mind, and should not ramble on. You can't hit a target in the dark. Punctuation also is important; punctuation marks have the same function as signs on a road. If you have to stop and go back and look again, the signs have failed."

The main speaker stressed the importance of banker-customer relations. "The time was when customers were awed by bankers, but that time has passed. Bankers now study customer relations, and realize that there can be no banks without customers, just as there can be no teachers without pupils."

Mr. Auch described recent legislation relative to banking. He explained that it has not been decided whether the wage and hour bill passed recently includes banking, and that an amendment to the social securities act to cover more employes and increase benefits probably will become law.

"We look for creation of additional quasi-governmental agencies which will compete in some respects with banks," Mr. Auch said. He said he looked for minor changes in the state banking statute and in the Boyd act, which deals with maximum hours for women.

He urged the bankers to choose their state and national legislators with care. "They make the laws," he reminded them.

Mr. Squire explained latest regulations in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the policy of the state inspectors relative to school foundation notes.

Mr. Cook traced the work of the Ohio Bankers association, laying emphasis on the legislative committee that interprets state legislation in reports to banks, and mentioned the American Bankers association, which fulfills the same service with national legislation. He also discussed service charges.

A program of music during dinner and in a short intermission during the speaking program was provided by Mrs. Mildred Weaver Gaston. Miss Helen Vernia, Roland T. Kaufman and Don Bradfield, as a quartet and in solo numbers, with Mrs. Jessie Hall, accompanist.

China pitchers were distributed as souvenirs.

During the afternoon members of the association, from Carroll, Columbiana, Harrison, Holmes, Jefferson, Stark, Tuscarawas and Wayne counties, played golf or visited the Hall China Co. A business meeting preceded the dinner.

The souvenir pitchers were presented by local bankers.

The meeting place for next yer's sessions will not be decided until next fall.

the two countries will form a single bloc.

"And if in Italy there should be some of those whom I call men who stand perennially behind shutters—those whom I call morally bourbeois—I declare they immediately will be placed hors de combat."

Il Duce indicated the question of war or peace in Europe might be decided in the next six days, he shouted before 300,000 Fascist blackshirts.

"I know all of you are ready for any eventuality."

When his legions roared back their approval, Mussolini concluded "this reply of yours, this oceanic cry, has been heard at this moment by the world."

Mussolini, taking a pessimistic view of the European crisis, declared Czechoslovakia's new military premier, Jan Syrovy, is "too great a friend of Moscow."

The premier visited this old university town in a resumption of his tour of Venetian provinces. The tour began Sept. 18 at Trieste, where he declared a decision has been made as to where Italian sympathies lay and praised Germany, his anti-Communist ally.

Nothing Was Settled

THE danger—or was it the folly?—of trying to prop up European peace at the expense of Czech nationalism is becoming plainer with each new report from abroad.

It was taken for granted the desire for a pacific settlement was shared by all parties concerned, including both Czechs and Germans.

The wishful thinkers who made that assumption reckoned without the upsurge of national pride in Czechoslovakia which unseated the cabinet that agreed to surrender of Sudetenland and the ruthlessness of Adolf Hitler, who now seems determined to waste no further time in setting the Nazi juggernaut in full motion toward the Ukraine.

Thus, it is made evident that nothing really was settled, except that in a particular situation Great Britain and France were willing to admit they did not intend to take a firm stand against Nazi Germany. If they hoped their accession to Hitler's demands would pacify him for the time being, they were wrong.

True, a general war today does not threaten Europe so strongly as it did a week ago. But that is not because of any change in the attitude of Nazi Germany; it is because, for the time being, the two major powers which threatened to oppose the Hitler dictatorship has stepped aside. Evidently, Czechoslovakia has no intention of following their example.

The result is problematic. It is possible that in the near future a condition similar to that in Spain may grow out of Czechoslovak government's refusal to play dead for the convenience of the fascist powers who seek to control the country.

There may be a clash of ideological groups within the country—an undeclared invasion pitted against a stubborn defense composed of government forces and volunteer forces

In this connection, it is interesting to note that Spain's loyalist government has announced it will release the foreign volunteers who have been fighting for it. Will some of them, perhaps, now find their way to Czechoslovakia to continue their fight against Germany and Italy on a new frontier?

Helping Hands

THE havoc wrought by the hurricane which roared up the Atlantic coast defies description. Even the excellent news pictures being published give only fragmentary details of the damage.

The planned ruin of high explosive warfare is but a feeble imitation of the mighty forces of wind and water, which can wreck in a few terrifying hours what men have spent years to build.

Yet, almost as conspicuous as the damage, itself, is the presence in almost every story and picture of men — and women, too — who risked great danger to help their fellowmen.

They were the policemen, telephone operators, and utility employes who stood by. They were the volunteer rescue workers, the transportation workers, the boat operators — all the sung and unsung heroes who kept their heads and their hearts to help mitigate the tragedy.

Such people must be the substance of what is called civilization.

Good Losing?

ANYONE predicting a few years back that social security would be the liveliest football ever turned over to politicians should be keeping a scrap book on old age pensions in Ohio.

Latest entry is the dismissal of Henry J. Berrodin as head of the state division for the aged. His successor is Wray Bevens, one of Gov. Davey's secretaries. No explanation for Mr. Berrodin's dismissal is given.

It will be universally assumed, therefore, that it is because Mr. Berrodin, confronted with a choice between lining up with Gov. Davey or the social security board in their pillow fight to decide who played the dirtier politics before and during the recent Democratic primary, chose the social security board. To be sure, he thinks the board has something to apologize for, too, but apparently decided it was the lesser evil.

So wham! Out goes Berrodin. If this be Gov. Davey's idea of what constitutes a "good loser" in politics, Ohio wonders what a bad loser would do.

Rosh Hashanah

WHILE the nations, armed to the teeth, fearfully await the signal which will plunge them into the abyss of war, Jews of the world Sunday at sundown will utter prayers for peace as they usher in the Biblical year 5699 with the celebration of Rosh Hashanah — the new year.

The ancient ceremonies, heralded by the traditional note of the shofer or ram's horn trumpet, will come as a welcome relief to a world apparently quailing under the thundering of power and dictators. The prayers to be offered in all synagogs and temples throughout the world for the coming of the day when all men will be brethren will come as a rebuke to those who would rule by force.

For the Jew, upon whom the terror of the Fascist and Nazi juggernauts have worked their greatest havoc, the outlook for the coming year is bleak. Yet, he will look forward hopefully this week toward the future with the prayer that the year 5699 will mark the turning point wherein civilization stopped on its rush toward destruction.

Czech Acceptance Of Powers' Ultimatum Lauded As One Of Most Civilized Documents In History

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

I SUPPOSE that in the long run, nothing is ever really lost. I have no doubt in my heart that some time, no one knows how remotely, when this world returns to the admiration of reason, respect for integrity and rule by law, and therefore can again claim to be civilized, peoples who have never set foot on the soil of Czechoslovakia will set up monuments to a small, tired, incredibly courageous man who, under fire, set the world a model of how a civilized human being ought to act—and whose people displayed to the world the same qualities.

Miss Thompson

The Czechoslovak government's acceptance of the Hitler-Chamberlain-Daladier ultimatum, is one of the most civilized documents of history. It is without rancor, without vituperation, without self-justification and without a single word of attack on any one. But it has also not missed a single vital point.

"We wished to suggest a settlement of the dispute by arbitration, but the suggestion was rejected by others."

The others are England and France who have preached peace by arbitration for 20 years.

"The government is determined to maintain peace and order and independence under the new conditions which confront it. We will defend freedom, self-sufficiency and independence under the new conditions, strengthened by the love of all people who belong to our state."

There is again a strong plea against provoking violence.

"Farmers, workers, industrialists, employers and soldiers, all remain at your old posts and do your duty! Remember that you cannot do anything by violence or by demonstrations in the streets . . . Authorities continue your usual duties. . . .

"Do not permit yourselves to be moved to inconsidered actions by agitators and provocateurs. Do not be depressed. Remain firm in your faith in the republic."

One of the last sentences is amazing.

"Our state and administration remain responsible to the world for the protection of the interests and security of the whole population of Czechoslovakia, Czech and German. This responsibility will be met."

SEVERAL important things have happened within the last 24 hours that indicate that the issue of war or peace is still not settled —not settled even on the basis of the extreme capitulation of Mr. Chamberlain.

As I write these lines the conference at Godesberg is deadlocked.

Hitler, anxious to sever the Franco-Polish alliance once and for all, has been conspiring to hand a piece of Czechoslovakia to Poland. Hitler anxious to bring Hungary into a hard and fast alliance with him, has been conspiring to hand another slice to Hungary.

The German press is clamoring that President Benes shall meet the same fate as Schuschnigg.

The entire democratic process has practically been suspended in Great Britain. Chamberlain went this time with demands of his own —the demobilization of German reservists now concentrated on the Czechoslovak frontier; the international demarcation of Czechoslovakia; an international commission for exchanging and transferring populations; cessation of the German press campaign against Czechoslovakia; an appeal from Hitler for peace in the interval, and guaranties including economic ones, for the integrity of what remains of the Czech state.

It is certainly important that "The London Times" states that any threats to the Czechoslovak parts of Czechoslovakia will be an entirely different matter from the ceding of the Sudeten areas. Also, Lord Winterton's broadcast saying that Britain is determined not to approve the demands of the Polish and Hungarian governments is particularly important because of the source from which it comes, for Lord Winterton is close to Lord Halifax.

The crucial point now is whether the British are willing to guarantee the remnants of Czechoslovakia and the limitation of losses of Czech territories to really German parts of the country.

BUT the previous concessions that have been made have made a promise from Great Britain to guarantee the independence of what is left of Czechoslovakia an infinitely more dangerous thing than it would have been to guarantee the whole of Czechoslovakia.

First of all, the British and French have conceded the principle of the rights of racial or linguistic minorities to secede under the threat of force from a sovereign state. Once that principle is conceded the Hungarian and Polish rights are exactly as just as the German.

Second, in conceding the right of the Sudetens to secede, they have appallingly weakened the defenses of what is left of Czechoslovakia and made it very much harder to defend her.

Third, they have done their best to break down the morale of the Czech population, which has stood up in a way to excite the admiration of every decent human being in the world.

Now Hitler knows all this, so why he should make concessions now from a much stronger position than he had last week it is difficult to see.

And one can perhaps be forgiven the suspicion that the British government is giving the impression of being resolute against further requests merely to calm down public opinion in England, which has stiffened considerably since the attacks by Anthony Eden, Winston Churchill and the leaders of the labor movement. After what has happened this week one can be forgiven for suspecting that Mr. Chamberlain is only quieting the British democracy until he has committed another irrevocable act.

Whatever happens, it would appear that he has destroyed the Czech democracy for the time being. And that time being may be very long! The Czechs do not wish to be governed by a democracy that has made the fatal error of placing its confidence in other democracies and they now have a military regime.

They are not crying for peace. They are crying for resistance.

Also, what the Czechs think of the possibility of Mr. Chamberlain persuading Hitler to demobilize his reservists and accept demarcation of the frontier by international com-

New War Rule

Today You Shoot First And Then Give Notice; In Past Declaration Of Battle Proved Gala Affair

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—If a general war engulfs Europe, the important historical question of its exact date may never be answered.

Will history say it began with Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia or Hitler's occupation of the Rhineland in 1936? Franco's challenge to loyalist Spain in that same year? Hitler's occupation of Austria in 1938? Or some memorable date like Chamberlain's visit to Hitler?

The historian's problem arises from that strange practice . . . shoot first and declare war when it suits, if at all.

Civil wars within a nation long have started without any declarations, including the Spanish revolution and our own war between the states.

Until the turn of the century, a declaration of war was a patriotic thrill. In ancient Rome they gave themselves over to a complete enjoyment of histrionics before the opposing armies fell on each other.

Emissaries of war were given honor. Great public spectacles greeted them. Plenty of banqueting intervened before the head emissary unruffled his toga and politely declared his host was a pain in the neck. Then everybody went home to buckle on his sword.

Today China and Japan are locked in a war a year old and neither has hinted a declaration of war ever will be made.

IN the last half century, the advent of modern war machinery had the effect of outmoding the practice of declaring war. The nation taking the offensive found it almost necessary to surprise the enemy.

Probably the last great war which was formally declared all along the line before hostilities began was the Franco - Prussian war of 1870. Both armies waited for a declaration of war. Even so, the German general staff had gone so far as to map out its mobilizations and army movements in advance. Germany won, by and large, because of advance preparations.

In our own Spanish-American war in 1898 congress was caught off base by the sinking of the Maine and was forced to content itself with recognizing on Aug. 25 that a state of war had existed for four days. In this country, congress has to make it legal.

The next big conflagration was the Russo-Japanese war of 1905. A strategic naval battle had been fought and won by Japan's heroic Admiral Togo two days before war was declared.

THE World war was little different. True, Austria declared war on Serbia. But the great powers were hiding their strategy and declarations would have given them away. The German army invaded Luxemburg two days before a declaration of war against France. France and Great Britain likewise were moving into battle formations before they got around to formal statements.

When we entered the World war, congress had a difficult time making up its mind, and when it did, April 6, 1917, the lawmakers decided to recognize the existence of a war that Germany had started against the United States months before.

This change in custom has played havoc with international law built up through centuries. A country declaring war is supposed to have certain belligerent rights, such as legal blockades and the like. Neutrals have certain rights of free passage on high seas. A violator of these rights is supposed to be subject to damages.

Modern practices seem to have scrambled all that, despite Secretary of State Hull's appeal to reason and lawful procedure. The big objective of a war-bent nation today is always concealed, every invasion must appear to be a defense of national honor.

This Is The Prize Hitler Wants

Czechoslovakia, One Of Europe's Paying Propositions.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA, though politically a synthetic nation, created in 1919, is one of the continent's natural economic units.

It is self-sufficient in such vital commodities as lumber, coal and most food products. Its resources include iron ore, silicates and radio-active salts. It produces no copper, rubber or cotton, its production of oil is negligible, and it depends largely on imported hides.

With a population of about 15,000,000, the country has about 178,000 industrial establishments. These industries are highly important. Despite the fact Czechoslovakia is nearly 60 percent agricultural, its industrial exports were responsible last year for a balance of trade which reached the impressive figure of $35,000,000.

About nine tenths of its industries employ less than five workers each; only 2 percent employ more than 20 workers. Yet it has been estimated that two thirds of the country's income producing wealth belongs to companies with less than 20 employes.

Industry is diversified. Prague, the capital, produces machinery, refined sugar, gasoline and oil products. Brno, 100 miles southeast of Prague, produces textiles and high quality firearms.

Moravska Ostrava, the Pittsburgh of Czechoslovakia, is situated only a stone's throw from the Polish border on the German frontier. Bratislava is the home of the famous Nobel dynamite works. Pilsen produces heavy machinery, locomotives, rail equipment and the famous Pilsen beer.

AT Zinn are the Bat'a shoe factories, completely modern and producing shoes sold throughout the world. There also are iron and steel works in Kladno.

The country has three automobile plants. Its largest industry is the Skoda foundry at Pilsen—center of the country's coveted arms industry.

Pilsen, a Czech city, is surrounded by Sudeten territory. Though it is not generally realized, many of the Czech republic's key industries lie in the Sudeten area. It has been pointed out by Czech leaders that loss of the area would make it impossible for the country to maintain itself.

This is contrary to the common idea that Sudetenland is important mainly because of its mountainous terrain, making it a natural geographic frontier. Its mountains are only part of its value to the Czechoslovaka nation.

More than two thirds of its cotton mills are concentrated in Sudetenland. Asch, home of Konrad Henlein, insurgent leader, is an important center of the woolen industry.

Other industries in the area are glass, flax spinning, jute, chemicals, enamel ware, paper, gloves, hops and fruit growing. In fact, it may be said without fear of contradiction that the Sudeten is potentially the wealthiest part of Czechoslovakia.

The insurgents have used this in their arguments for annexation to Germany. They contend that in the effort to discriminate against them the government deliberately has tried to keep the Sudeten from realizing its potentialities, even to the extent of transplanting some industries in the interior of the country. This is said to be true of the steel industry, for instance.

THE Sudeten Germans are descendants of 12th century colonists in the Slavic kingdom of Bohemia. Bohemia lost its independence in the 17th century at the battle of the White Mountain, falling under the rule of the Austrian Hapsburgs. They never were under German rule; they belonged to Austria until the end of the World war.

When Austria disintegrated, the Sudetens proclaimed their independence and set up their own cantonal governments, which were dissolved by the Allies on the grounds they eventually would fall under Austrian rule. Even then it was foreseen that if Austria fell prey to Germany, the Sudetens would be claimed by the reich.

The Sudetens resigned themselves to their fate as a minority group and did not flare into opposition until after Hitler's rise in Germany.

Politically, they were divided generally into "activist" and "negativist" parties, the former believing in cooperation with Czechoslovakia, the latter believing in complete resistance.

The "negativist" parties were dissolved by the government in 1933, but a year later the Sudeten German party, organized along Nazi lines, arose under Konrad Henlein, a physical culture leader.

In 1935 the new party polled more than two thirds of the vote in the Sudeten districts and got more than twice as many seats in parliament as the "activist" parties. Henlein lost ground in municipal elections in 1936 and again in 1937 when the government agreed to employ Sudetens in state services proportionately to their numbers. The Henleinists repudiated the concession, and it failed to work out satisfactorily.

Our Old Man Was Staunch Booster Of Preachers; He Did Think They Ought To Dabble In Other Fields

By DAMON RUNYON

OUR old man liked preachers.

He grouped all ministers of the gospel under that term. He knew quite a number of them back in our old home town of Pueblo and he generally addressed them all as "parson."

He said that preachers as a rule were educated, intelligent men and worth knowing. He said that one thing about a preacher, you could carry on a conversation with him that would be free of profanity, off-color stories, petty gossip and backbiting.

We think our old man liked to talk to preachers as a relief from the light chit-chat of his usual associates. He was not a religious man himself though he had a profound respect for religion. He said it was the only hope for the world in the last analysis.

He thought American communities made too little use of preachers. He said it was mighty silly to elevate to important public office, or to entrust with any important public mission whatever a numbskull politician or a coarse-grained professional or businessman when the community might have available a polished, cultured gentleman like a preacher.

Our old man thought it was sort o' wasteful to take a bright young fellow and educate him thoroughly and then confine his talents to the narrow precincts of a church parish, sometimes for most of his life, though he did not decry the importance of a man's spiritual labors even in the most limited field.

HE just said it was foolish for a community to neglect taking advantage of a clean, trained mind for employment in all phases of civic endeavor. He argued that the very fact that a man had theological training should make him all the more valuable in dealing with mundane problems, because in most cases he would apply to them the fundamental principle of honesty, which our old man contended was all that mundane problems require for proper solution.

He said communities should make it a point to draft preachers for jobs like mayor, sheriff, state senator and county commissioner. He said he saw no reason why a preacher could not do a good job of sheriffing while continuing to look after his flock.

Our old man had a fight one night in the turf exchange gambling house with a fellow who was squawking about a preacher who was bawling out the open gambling in our home town. Our old man said the preacher was dead right because open gambling was against public morals and it was the preacher's job to hop on anything opposed to public morals.

The fellow said well, here you are gambling yourself, and our old man said yes, but he was not a preacher and public morals were none of his business, and one word led to another until finally the fellow tweaked our old man's red goatee and hurt his feelings and he hit the fellow in the eye with the metal box that they deal the cards out of in faro bank and it ruined a friendship.

Our old man said that if he had a great raft of money he would endow preachers everywhere with annuities so they would be sure of a good living and be independent of everybody and then they could always go out and say what they pleased.

He said preachers were often like struggling editors who might want to say a lot of things but were deterred by reasons of business policy. He said sometimes a preacher might want to blow the roof off something, but would be restrained by the thought that it would let the rain in on some important parishioner.

OUR old man said he did not consider that intellectual dishonesty. He said probably the preacher himself hated his reticence, but what could he do? Maybe he had a sick wife and a batch of children at home who had to be provided for, and he could not afford to be irritating influential parishioners.

Our old man said his annuities would eliminate economic fear from the minds of the preachers and enable them to go belting right and left through the land and thus improve our spiritual and mundane conditions everywhere. Of course our old man never got any farther with his plan than just thinking of it.

Our old man said that the percentage of general intellectual dishonesty among preachers was too small to be considered. He said that any man who was willing to dedicate himself over any considerable period of time to the spiritual welfare of his fellow citizens for the starvation wages paid preachers could not in the very nature of things be dishonest, intellectually or otherwise.

He said a man smart enough to be a preacher would not long be satisfied with the pitiful emoluments of preaching if he were intellectually dishonest. He held that the occupation required too much sacrifice of worldly comforts and pleasures to engage the protracted attention of an intellectually dishonest man.

Our old man said show him a preacher who had been at his preaching for over five years and he would show you a 100 percent honest man. He said a man who could stand off worldly lure that long to stick to preaching had to be honest.

Fun With Faucets

A WATER faucet, like a milk bottle, is one way man tries to prove he's master of the elements of survival. Thus, instead of having to hunt up water every time he wants a drink and maybe finding none, he turns a handle and presto! there's water.

Things sometimes go wrong. The three common, or household ailments, of water faucets are: dripping, rattling and spurting. All are treated the same way.

First, having hunted without success for the flashlight one of the children was given last Christmas, take a handful of matches and look for the main valve which turns off the water.

Then brush the cobwebs out of your hair and try to find the pipe wrench which the plumber left behind two years ago when he came to fix the gas heater. A pipe wrench is a lot of fun when you get the hang of it.

This will become clearer as the wrench keeps slipping off the place where the faucet looks as though it should come apart. Keep trying. The chances are it won't turn out to be anything more serious than losing a fingernail when it finally happens.

Finally, with a grudging squeak, the faucet will start to come apart, and in due course of time it will turn out that the new thingumbob you brought home isn't the right size and here you are with the confounded faucet scattered all over the place, the stores closed and three people upstairs waiting for the water to be turned back on so they can use the bathroom—

So you call the plumber at his home and plead with him to come right away, promising to return a pipe wrench he left there two years ago, hoping this will melt his heart. It usually does. If no pipe wrench is available, mention some seasonal drink.

If the plumber's thirsty and doesn't live too far away, this will work every time.

The government under a recent bid now can buy its supply of paper for currency for three cents a pound less than last year. But it isn't that which makes it worth less as a finished product.—Nashville Banner.

STATE

It is easy to understand the enthusiastic advance reports concerning Sonja Henie's newest triumph, "My Lucky Star, which opens today at the State theater.

A radiant modern girl, having a modern good time on a coed campus, wearing swank clothes, having swell dates—that's Sonja as you'll see her now, against a background as American as a college yell.

Sharing star honors with her is Richard Greene, handsome young British actor, while Joan Davis, Cesar Romero and Buddy Ebsen promise much in the way of comedy in their featured roles.

The story opens with Sonja enrolling as a student at Plymouth college, where she is to model the smart sports clothes of Romero's (or rather, his father's) Fifth ave. store. In the school's annual ice carnival Sonja is so sensational that a picture magazine publishes her photograph on its cover. Romero's alimony-minded wife uses this to create a newspaper scandal between her husband and Sonja, forcing Sonja's resignation from school.

To clear her own name so that she will be free to continue her romance with Richard, and to help Romero raise the money to settle with his wife, Sonja agrees to stage her ice carnival in the Fifth ave. store. It is here that Sonja performs her magnificent "Alice In Wonderland ice ballet, one of the six big skating ensembles in the picture.

The supporting cast includes Arthur Treacher, George Barbier, Louise Hovick, Billy Gilbert, Patricia Wilder and Paul Hurst.

Tri-State 4-H Club News

Columbiana County

JOHN WARD of near Signal, member of the Columbiana County 4-H club, will enter four Hereford steers in the sixth annual Pittsburgh livestock show Oct. 18 and 19.

John Strausbaugh, assistant county agricultural agent, said several farm youths of this county were grooming lambs, pigs and cattle preparatory to entering their prize stock in the show.

Rural young people from Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania participate. The show is sponsored by the stock yards company, live stock commission agencies and packers of Pittsburgh.

Hancock County

All club members can begin project work immediately states Garnet Protzman, county club agent. Project circulars, which contain the directions and rules for procedure within each project, are now available from the county office. This early supply of circulars is unusual and it is hoped will influence better project work. The state office at Morgantown has made the material available by the first of October.

Leaders and assistant leaders of 4-H clubs met at the home of Garnet Protzman, club agent in New Cumberland last week to check reports of the year's progress and to plan for club events in the near future.

During the business session the group made plans for the achievement banquet for club members to be held Oct. 15 at the Pughtown hall. Plans for the annual physical examination and health program were discussed. On the recommendation of Dr. Bruce and Miss Somerville, it was decided to conduct these examinations the first two weeks in November at the county health unit in New Cumberland. Following the examination, local club committees on health will plan to keep a list of all defects corrected.

Plans for holding 4-H camp within Hancock county were introduced by T. R. Hash, county agent. The group discussed these at some length and the following committee was appointed for further investigation of ways and means: Mrs. C. E. Minesinger, Bob Herron and Bill Highfield.

The meeting closed with a social hour in charge of the hostess and her assistant, Doris Huff.

The Hancock County poultry judging team consisting of Ernest Hogue, Denver Hogue, Robert Brewer and Billy Hillyard, alternate, left Wednesday for Jacksons Mill to compete in the state wide contest.

Again for the second consecutive year Hancock county has won the regional contest, and thus competed in the state contest. Last year, the team placed second. The winning team receives a trip to Chicago to compete in the national contest.

A "Melody Mixer" party will be the entertainment for the regular monthly meeting of the Hancock County Senior 4-H council Wednesday night Sept. 28 at 8 in the Grange hall at Pughtown. Martha Rizor, Dale Highfield and Bob Herron are in charge of the plans. Ten senior council members are in college at this time but there are yet 29 members in the county, and monthly meetings will continue on through the winter.

The Point Pleasant 4-H club officers elected for the coming year are: President, Iris Carson; vice president, Junior Jones; secretary, Iris Cuppy; treasurer, Jack Carson and reporter, Virginia Chambers.

Plans were also discussed for making money for the coming year. Games and songs were enjoyed during the recreation period and the meeting was closed by the national 4-H Pledge repeated in unison.

Beaver County

Approximately 300 4-H club girls, boys, local leaders and parents attended the annual countywide roundup at Beaver High school auditorium and gymnasium Sept. 17.

An assembly program was held in the auditorium in the morning during which R. M. Gridley, county agent, showed movies of the 1937 and 1938 4-H girls' camps.

Lunch was held at noon, followed by inspection of exhibits until 1:30, when the group assembled in the auditorium for the afternoon program in charge of Dorothy Majors, Daugherty township, and Virginia Cowan, Chippewa township.

A style review in the form of a playlet "Window Shopping is Fun," was presented by the club girls enrolled in clothing projects. Dorothy and Mary Garrett of Economy township took the leading parts, while the ohter girls acted as store window models and displayed the garments they had made.

The New Galilee 4-H club gave a song and skit entitled "4-H Club Work." This is a baking club composed of the following boys, Harold Frye, Harry Frye, Glen Rohrman, Harold Martsolf, Donald Forsythe, James Welsh and Reed Duncan.

Slides entitled "Courtesies of Everyday Life" were shown and explained by Miss McKain, Dorothy Majors and Virginia Cowan.

LOSS OF JOBS MUST BE REPORTED IN OHIO

Employers Required To Give Data After Oct. 1

East Liverpool district employers were advised today that every worker insured under the Ohio unemployment compensation law who loses his job after Oct. 1 must be reported to the state job insurance officials.

Fred L. Biechele, executive director, said the report must be made in preparation for payment of benefits after Jan. 1. A new regulation makes it mandatory.

The provision requires a report from every employer when a covered worker becomes separated from services of the employer, either permanently or for an indefinite period or for seven consecutive days, giving such information as the worker's name, social security number, employment and wage data and the reason for loss of the job.

Employers also are required to furnish the worker with copy of the report within 24 hours after separation from work. The cause of the worker's unemployment must be reported. The waiting period of those discharged for cause and those voluntarily leaving their employment without cause is extended from three to six weeks and the total time they can draw as benefits in one year is automatically reduced from 16 to 13 weeks.

The Sunlit Road

By TOM T. JONES

JOHN LOCKETT, former East Liverpool boy, is a member of the International Brigade, serving in wartorn Spain.

Mrs. John R. Stoddard of May st., is in receipt of a copy of The Kent Stater, official organ of Kent State university, in which is printed a letter written from Spain by young Lockett. It was sent her by her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Stoddard Wolcott who lives in Kent and who was a classmate of young Lockett in East Liverpool High school.

Mr. Lockett is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lockett. His father was a pottery modeler here with the firm of Gotham and Lockett, whose shop was located in a building which stood opposite the post-office on the site of the Standard Oil filling station. After his graduation from high school, Mr. Lockett entered Keyon college in 1920 and enrolled in Cleveland college in 1925. In 1928 he was a student at Kent State university where he graduated with a degree in education in 1930.

In his letter to the college publication, Mr. Lockett said that he was working on "Services Sanitario Internationel" at Barcelona.

"As a teacher training center, Kent should be interested in the unusual efforts of the people of Spain and government to carry on an educational program in the midst of war. In the hospitals, among both the staff and the wounded, classes to wipe out illiteracy are held. Thus girls of 17 and 18 can celebrate with joy their newly-acquired ability to sign their names."

Of political conditions in Spain, he wrote:

"The new republic, the new democracy had just started to accomplish things for the people, new school buildings, water supply, etc., when two years ago the reactionary forces rebelled Now the Spaniards are fighting for their independence against invading forces of Italy and Germany."

The reasons for his going to Spain, Mr. Lockett said were "to protect democracy in America" and "to save democracy in Spain." His address was given as Plaza Altozano, 2-8, Barcelona, Spain.

Special To The Review.

EAST PALESTINE, Sept. 24 — A new proposal to obtain NYA work here has been launched by Charles Conkle, city relief administrator calling for a check-up on sanitary sewers in the homes of East Palestine.

The check-up was urged by John Todd, city health officer, who declared a health menace exists in the numerous open sewers now in use here.

City officials already have put into motion plans to secure an NYA project for the erection of a recreation center at the fairgrounds. More than 60 boys applied for work at a recent registration.

BARBED BARRIER GUARDS LAND OF PALESTINE JEWS

Northern Border Protected Against Arab Terrorists By Wall Of Steel

Fourth In A Series

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

(World copyright, 1938, by International News Service. Reproduction in whole or part forbidden.)

NORTHERN PALESTINE FRONTIER, Sept. 24.—Jews are fair game for the anti-semite killers in great sections of Europe, and there is not even a game law to protect them, but in Palestine, with all their handicaps, they have at least some of the privileges of self-defense. They have today completed the greatest piece of fortification that the Jews have ever constructed for Jews since they last put up the wall around Jerusalem 2,000 years ago.

They put it up in the heart of the Arab bandit country, where the British authorities feared any group of Jewish workmen would be slaughtered. It represents an epic of Jewish labor, courage and initiative. It is a wall of barbed wire, 10 feet high, from two to six yards wide, running for 65 miles along tthe northern frontier of Palestine, and shutting off for the first time the entry of Arab terrorists from the Labanon and Syria.

Mention Of Wall Forbidden

Officially it is called "Tegart's wall," but its proper name is the "Jewish wall," because though Sir Charles Tegart, British anti-terror G-man from Bengal thought of it, and the British authorized it, the Jews built it. For some deep reasons of strategy or politics the British forbid any mention of the wall in the Palestine press.

I stood at a gate in its center and asked David Hacohen, its builder, how many yards of barbed wire were contained in the shimmering band of gray that stretched as far as the eye could see to the Mediterranean on one side to Lake Hule on the other.

"About 25,000,000 yards," answered Hacohen pushing his straw hat to the back of his head, "and it cost half a million dollars, just about $5 a yard of fence." He leaned up against our armored car. You can't travel without an armored car in northern Palestine, not even since the wall, because there are plenty of Arab killers already inside.

Twenty-five million yards were required because the wall consists not only of three fences of wire closely strung on triangle steel rods, every other one embedded in concrete, but between the fences is heaped loose barbed wire higher than a man's head in a tangle that only a lizard could penetrate. Hacohen, which means the priest, is one of the typical new race of the fighting Jews of Palestine. With his rifle on his lap he sat beside me as we drove the entire length of the frontier road paralleling the wall. A strip 30 to 50 yards wide separates the road from the barbed wire and this strip has been burned of brush and trees to give clear shooting.

British Wanted Wall

When Sir Charles Tegart conceived the wall, he called Hacohen, who is managing director of the Jewish Labor Federation's company "Paver and Builder." Once agreed upon, the British wanted the wall in a hurry. Arms and bandits were pouring over the northern frontier in such a flood that the "disturbances" were about to shake even British calm.

"How quickly could you build it?" they asked Hacohen. "Three months," he answered. "Nonsense, you can't do it in nine," they replied. "The Arabs will kill half your men before you can begin."

"Then give me a clause granting time out for burying the dead," was Hacohen's answer which brought a laugh and signature of the contract.

He took 1,000 Jewish workmen, 90 of them armed, and 200 Jewish supernumerary police, and to the astonishment of the British began to erect an average of one kilometer, three-fifths of a mile, a day. That meant he was putting into place 250,000 yards of wire a day. First difficulty was finding that much wire. Out of the shades of the Abyssinian war it surprisingly appeared. Hacohen found over 1,000 tons of it in Czechoslovakia and Belgium, originally ordered by Italy for the war in Abyssinia but prevented from delivery by the league sanctions. Italy itself, no longer needful of wire, provided 600 tons, and Palestine industry 400 tons.

Men Camped In Tents

Second difficulty was food. Hacohen had it brought hot in thermos containers from Haifa 75 miles away. His men camped in 260 tents, had a cold shower every night.

Third and worst difficulty was the Arabs. As I saw how the wall cut straight through Arab fields, making for the first time in thousands of years of history a real defense of this hitherto lawless frontier, it seemed inevitable that the wall would irritate the Arabs. It did, beyond measure.

Hacohen got wind of coming trouble when his agents informed him that in Damascus suddenly every form of cutting instrument from pliers to scissors, had been bought up by Arabs. Soon after the blow fell.

Thirty kilometers of wall were built when one night 1,000 Arab villagers, impressed by gangster chiefs, descended and destroyed seven kilometers. They bent the angle irons, put canvas sacks across the fence and trampled down what they could not cut.

"It broke my heart to see it," said Hacohen. "About a week later the Arabs returned and destroyed another five kilometers. Then they sent me a message saying, 'You work hard to build six kilometers in six days. We rest six days and pull down your six kilometers in one night."

To crown their audacity the Arabs from half a dozen villages turned up soon after the attack on the wall and applied to Jewish hospitals for treatment of their hands, wounded by the wire. British troops took a hand, drag-netted the neighborhood, and put 700 Arabs in a concentration camp.

Attacks Continued

That was not enough. Attacks continued. Hacohen pondered. The Arab defiance stung. Hacohen produced a fighting plan. The next time the Arabs laid hands on the Wall four of them disappeared in a loud explosion. Now no Arab will touch the wire for none can tell which part is mined.

The "Jewish wall" now effectively cuts off the bandit invasion from the north. It runs from the Mediterranean to the bottomless marshes of Lake Hule, home of mosquitoes, malaria and a strange race of sickly savages, and an extension runs down to the Sea of Galillee, Lake Tiberias.

Its usefulness has already been proved. A comparatively small number of British troops patrolling the parallel road can now keep sealed a frontier which formerly was wide open. Its further significance is that an extension clear down the Jordan to the Dead sea would make of that sacred but meager stream an impenetrable barrier to keep out the gangs which still come across from Trans-Jordan to join their brothers in the war upon the British and the Jews.

The 40,000 Jews of Palestine believe that, given a free hand by the British, they could take care of the 900,000 Arabs in Palestine, if Arab gangsters from abroad could be excluded. It would involve only another 70 or 80 miles of wall.

The confidence of the Jews may seem astonishing to those who have not seen the Jews of Palestine. They are different Jews. They come from all over the world, but they derive from Judas Maccabaeus, the hammer, and they are ready like the hammer to smash their enemies.

Could the Jews defend themselves? Given the proper territorial boundaries, could they hold their own with the Arabs? Have they the temperament and character to fight? A visit to Hanita may provide an answer.

Red, White, Blue

CHRISTOPHER admired himself immensely.

"I'm red, white and blue," he cawed to himself, and then he began to sing in his cawing voice:

"Three cheers for the red, white and blue."

Now he would have to fly very carefully back to the others so that the paint wouldn't streak. He wanted each wing to be different and his body to be white as it was now.

But when he started to fly he found he could hardly manage at all. The paint was so sticky and it made it very difficult for him to move his wings.

He was not far away so he would hop along. But even that was hard to do.

He was near enough to them after a long, struggling walk now to hear Willy Nilly calling to him:

"Hurry back, Christopher Columbus Crow. You want some sleep before you start out bright and early in the morning, you know."

"I'm coming," sawed Christopher.

The crow knew that they would expect him in a minute or two, but he was still out of sight. He was moving so slowly.

"What's the matter?" called Willy Nilly again. "Nothing has happened to you I hope?"

"I'm coming," cawed Christo-Columbus Crow, "I have to move slowly."

"Oh, you've hurt a wing?" cried Willy Nilly.

"No, no, caw, caw, say not so," cawed Christopher. "My wings are beautiful, beautiful. Three cheers for the red, white and blue."

CHAPTER 42
KIDNAPED!

WE lunched, which is to say that Dunning and I gulped down some mouthfuls of food while Hugo sat, refusing everything. Then Dunning suggested inquiring at the various gas stations on the roads out of town, to hear if they had seen the yellow car pass, and though it was a forlorn hope, any action was better than nothing, so for a couple of hours we scoured the dusty countryside, all to no purpose. The Esterels were still burning bravely, but for the moment such a small event as a conflagration held no interest for me, and finally, just as dusk was falling, we pulled up again on the main square.

Across the crowded promenade pulling up outside the Grand Hotel, was a shabby Renault with dust thick upon it. A stocky, middling-sized man descended from it and started to climb the steps of the hotel, but before he had reached the door, I was across the promenade and gripping him by the shoulder.

"Fleuriot!" I said. "You're a sight for sore eyes!"

He swung round and his face lighted at sight of me. "Tiens!" he answered warmly. There is a small matter of a wager to be settled between us, a wager connected with the word 'Amourie.' You were right my friend," he added, tapping me in a friendly way on the shoulder, "but I could wish you had been a trifle more explicit, for you see, when I got there, the bird he had flown!"

I stared at him stupidly. "What bird?" I echoed, and he shook his head, gently reproving.

"Do not pretend you did not know. The chasseur, of course! I guessed, naturally, that the word must be a street name in one of the older towns, and I made a lucky decision in trying Antibes first, but it took me some little time to locate the street, for it is now renamed. I discovered it at last, however!" he finished triumphantly. "And more, I found the house itself, the former dwelling of the armourer who gave it its name. So I added to myself certain of the local police, and between us we broke down the door."

"Gosh! I said wistfully. "I wish I'd been there!"

"And, I too," he assented politely. "With your weight, we had needed three policemen the less—but I digress! The ground floor was empty, but I ascended to the first story, even to that upper room where the old printing-press stands." He paused, nodding his head solemnly. "There it stood, the whole equipment for that interesting little astrological magazine. We had received inquiries at the Surete about this strange publication, notably from the Dunning Agency of New York."

"I know all about that. I made 'em. I'm Dunning," said the big man hollowly.

"But now I found proof positive that Monsieur Rene Geiss was the author — notes, proof-corrections, unfinished sketches, what you like. You knew this, Monsieur Lumsden!" he added accusingly.

'Help!'

"We guessed it," I corrected him, "but we hadn't a shred of proof. Go on, man, go on!"

"Hiding in an attic under the eaves, I discovered a woman a Negress, who said she was in charge of the house."

"Fatma," I said as he paused, and he flashed me a swift, reproachful look. "You see, you know all, Monsieur Lumsden. This Fatma I questioned, and she told me what I suspected. The chasseur had indeed sheltered there for two days, but that very morning he had left, for where do you think? For no less a place than the villa of a certain Monsieur Vladimir Rakovsky in Italy."

"And you believed her?" said Hugo hoarsely.

The other shrugged expressively. "I believed her, yes, for I had no reason to do otherwise, and her story was circumstantial. Also, I had other things to go on, as you shall hear. So to Monsieur Rakovsky I went, but when I arrived, it was to find I had been on what you call a wild-duck hunt. Our friend was not there—he never had been there, and Monsieur Rakovsky was a very indignant man at the mere suggestion that he might have been there! So back to Cannes I came, like the game-dog who has lost the game!"

"Too bad!" I said mechanically, for there was something in his manner that told he still had a surprise or two tucked away up his sleeve. "Look here, Fleuriot, I added, "this other evidence that convinced you you were on the right trail—what was it?"

"Ah!" said he, on a long-drawn sigh, and his eyes, sharply intelligent, searched each of our faces in turn. "It was such a little thing, a mere scrap of paper, lying concealed under the printing-press, and yet, to me, it said a great deal!" And with that he fumbled in his pocket and drew out a crumpled sheet of soiled paper, presenting it with a flourish for our inspection.

I took it, unfolding it dazedly, while Hugo and Dunning craned their heads over my shoulder to read, and there I saw, scrawled in red chalk, in crude capitals an inch high, the words: "They are taking me to Italy. Help! Ottilie Wills!"

"And she wasn't there?" said Dunning in a queer, hushed voice.

The man from Marseille gave him a sharp, quizzical look. "It is correct, then, that Miss Wills has disappeared?" he demanded, and at the others hopeless gesture of assent, he nodded slowly. "So? Then I will answer you. Not only was Miss Wills not there, mon ami, but she had never been there—if by 'there' you mean the villa of Monsieur Rakovsky. She has not been taken into Italy, and I tell you this with my hand on my heart, for two hours of my precious time were spent in questioning the frontier guards to determine that fact."

He stopped, with a sigh of sheer weariness. "I am very tired. May I suggest that we adjourn to the lounge?"

We filed after him into the big, empty room and sent a waiter scurrying for refreshment. "And now, messieurs," said Fleuriot quietly, "I think that you have a great deal to tell me, but first let me make my own position clear. I had already heard, as I have told you, of the inquiries made by Monsieur Dunning here and others as to the authorship of Le Grimoire astrologique inquiries which we had not, unfortunately, been able to answer. I knew that a plot against the life of Monsieur Virgoe Wills was suspected, but I tell you frankly that I thought the idea fantastic, and neither we of the Surete nor the local police were unduly disturbed when Monsieur Wills and his niece arrived here. When, however, I saw this note, I realized that the idea of the young lady's abduction was not as fantastic as it might otherwise have appeared, and I realized too that Monsieur Rene Geiss was in some way implicated."

'West, Not East'

He paused to sip appreciatively from his glass. "It is not so hard to be wise after the event!" he admitted with a wry little smile. "But me, I felt a spiritual indigestion at the knowledge that was suddenly heaped upon my plate, for, from the fact that the chasseur had been hiding in that house, I deduced that there was a connection between this Wills affair and the murder of Monsieur Venner, and more, that you, Monsieur Lumsden, had been in possession of this information for some time, but had not thought fit to inform me!"

I shifted uneasily. "Let's not go into that now," I suggested. "You'll find I had good enough reasons when the time comes to spill them."

He waved his hand magnanimously. "I've heard of the regrettable attempt on Monsieur Will's' life and the not so regrettable fate of the assassin. Now I see that the disappearance of Miss Wills is a very serious matter. You believe, do you not that Monsieur Geiss has abducted her? My friends, you shall tell me all you know, and then we must act, and act quickly."

"This will be news to the lot of you," Hugo said. "Whether Ottilie has been abducted or not, one thing is certain. She didn't write this letter! First, it's printed in lipstick."

Fleuriot grinned. "The classic method for ladies in distress who have no pencil."

"Just so," assented Hugo dryly. "But I think you will admit that ladies are not in the habit of carrying an assortment of lipsticks around with them. I happen to know that Miss Wills uses what I believe is known as carmine, whereas this letter, you will note, is printed with an orange stick."

Fleuriot rapped out an oath and sprang to his feet. "You are sure of this, Monsieur Stern?" he demanded sharply.

Hugo swung round on me. "Archie, you saw that Negress the other night—what shade of lipstick would you say she used?"

I cast my mind back to that bizarre scene under the night sky. "Orange it was!" I admitted, and he gave a short, triumphant laugh.

"You see? It was the Negress who wrote this letter, and she wrote it under dictation with the sole object of making us believe that Ottilie had been in Antibes and was then carried even farther east into Italy." He broke off, studying our intent faces. "Gentlemen," he finished, "there's only one possible explanation for that maneuver—Ottilie never was in Antibes, and if we want to find her, we must look, not east, but west."

Fleuriot struck his forehead. "West, that includes the whole of France!"

"Steady on, man!" said I. "That car of Geiss's should be easy to trace, and if Ottilie's gone with him unwillingly he couldn't well shift her into a train."

"The car!" he echoed. "Imbecile that I am! If the car is on the road it shall be found!" And he ran like a two-year-old to the private telephone in the manager's office.

Daily Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, Sept. 25

SUNDAY'S horoscope is an excellent one for affairs of the church and state, as well as for all those activities that spell promotion, achievement, and fulfilled desires of a social nature. Withal, there may be a rather sensational or unusual development in private or romantic associations, but generally matters should flourish and bring happiness.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of opportunity and advancement, with fortunes growing by some sudden speculative coup or by the intervention of a person of prestige and position.

A child born on this day may be well equipped for a happy and prosperous life, being cultured, ambitious and of fine social, moral and intellectual standing. It may rise to influential position in education, religion or politics.

For Monday, Sept. 26

Monday's astrological forceast is for a lively and enterprising day, although the high-pressure activity may lead into certain treacherous or malicious channels.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a lively and productive year, the success of which may incite venomous and envious attack of a subtle nature. It would be well to circumvent such possibility by worthiness, integrity of purpose and soundness of objectives. Take precaution and particular care not to leave weak spots in writings or documents, or other vulnerable points, being careful not to be involved in intrigues or plots.

A child born on this day may be inclined to be clever, shrewd, crafty, leaning toward intrigue, schemes and conspiracies. It may be very facile with its pen and probably speech as well. Nevertheless, it may be favored by its superiors.

Sisters Quit Bands For Vows

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 24.—It once was the night life, now it is the exemplary one; once they wore evening gowns and the uniforms of dance orchestra members, but now they wear the white habit of the Roman Catholic novice.

For the Jones sisters — Hazel, Gladys, Dorothy and Evelyn—former members of the Texas Rangerettes orchestra, are preparing to become nuns.

The Jones sisters, whose ages range from Evelyn's 23 years to Hazel's 29, played with the Rangerettes for eight years. They had engagements at leading night clubs in major American cities, in Mexico and in Hawaii. They lived with a carefree world, but not in it.

Mother Accompanies Girls

On Jan. 1, they played their last engagement with the band. They made no public announcement of their plans, but went quietly to the Incarnate Word and Blessed Sacrament convent where they were admitted on Jan. 6. Mrs. Mary Jones, their widowed mother, accompanied them.

The mother and daughters passed the six months in the postulate preparing for their canonical year. They studied music and other classical and commercial subjects.

Recently, with the end of their postulate, they were invested with the white habit of the sisters of the congregation. For the next year they will be in the novitiate for profound study of the rules of the congregation. And at the end of that time, they may take their religious vows. In three more years they will become nuns.

What, besides devotion to the church, influenced the girls and their mother to enter the convent is not known. Jerry McRae, who managed the Rangerettes and who knew the girls well, has no explanation.

Unaffected By Night Life

"They saw a great deal of night life in the eight years they spent with the band," Miss McRae said. "They enjoyed seeing it, but they never cared to take part in it. I suppose the only answer is that they loved the church more than the life they'd seen."

Miss McRae said the girls never drank or smoked.

"I never knew one of the girls to be more than casually interested in a man," she added. "All four are attractive girls, and I do know that certain men have been in love with them—even proposed marriage to them."

The girls all are accomplished musicians, each played three instruments with the Rangerettes.

When the last of their vows are taken, the sisters probably will be sent out to Catholic schools to teach music to children.

Self-Cooling Turtle

PHILADELPHIA.—This season's hot spells don't mean a thing to the Philadelphia Zoo's matamata—a self-cooling turtle. His cooling apparatus consists of a long slender tube protuding from his snout. The turtle just parks in a pool of water, sticks up his "periscope" and needn't come to the surface at all.

Mourn Dead Horse

HANKOW, China—Japanese soldiers in this district recently attended mourning services in memory of the thousands of horses killed in action in the Hankow area. Hymns were sung at the services, which followed the Buddhistic rite.

Suggestions For Care Of Health And Beauty

Skin Of Face Needs Extra Care, Exercise To Lose Unsightly Wrinkles

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN a woman is confronted with the first wrinkle, it is a perplexing mystery why flesh on the body remains smooth and firm, hands and face takes on creases. There is a reason. The skin surface of the body is protected by clothing, muscles are exercised, tissues stay normal. The facial overcoat is subjected to harsh winds, strong sunlight, atmospheric dust. Fibers beneath it get little exercise. Worry, ill health and sleeplessness takes a heavy toll.

Creams nourish the facial structure and friction acts favorably upon the underlying cushions. If tissues appear impoverished, get busy every night and give your complexion a bit of petting. Slap it briskly with flattened fingers, pinch it lightly, palm from jaws and chin to forward hairline with fingers well oiled.

Place the first finger on the eyelid close to the nose, sweep outward to the temple, come back under the eye to starting point. That movement irons out the folds. Be gentle. Flesh elsewhere composed of delicate, interlacing fibers must be smoothed lightly.

Have as many pairs of shoes as you can afford and have them of different designs. Keep on hand a pair of broad-toed, low-heeled oxfords even though you have your high-heeled booties.

Feet appreciate change; it rests them. When possible, go barefoot. Sit in a low chair, wriggle your toes. Try to turn them under. They like a little play now and then.

STOCK ADVANCE FOLLOWS SLIDE

Copper Shares Lead Swing Upward Toward Close

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—The stock market sounded a hasty retreat at the opening today after looking at the overnight war omens but reversed itself for a rally when the initial wave of selling had passed.

Led by copper shares, the market turned upward from the early depths, recouping much of the initial losses ranging to more than three points or changing them into net gains.

A rush to buy grains, started by a big jump in wheat at Liverpool, also subsided after the Chicago grain pit had marked up prices for wheat futures for gains of nearly four cents at the opening.

Going above the previous closing prices on the recovery were Anaconda, Cerro De Pasco, Kennecott, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, Union Carbide and U. S. Steel.

Cotton near the close was five to 20 cents a bale lower after reducing earlier losses.

The usual week-end quiet in Wall Street was dispelled by the speculation on chances of war. Transactions in the share list in the two-hour session approximated 900,000.

Attracting attention to copper shares, traditionally favored for war speculation, was a Wall Street report Anaconda Copper had increased its operations.

Steels, also noted in the past as "war babies," drew support on expectations the steel industry would lift its operating rate further before the autumn stimulus to buying passes its crest.

While Wall Street paid attention to little else than the European situation, business analysts noted the summer industrial upturn had lifted the railroads out of the depths of an earnings slump.

Hopes for expansion in automobile production were lifted by reports field stocks of automobiles were near the vanishing point, stimulating dealer demand for cars.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Renewal of heavy buying of wheat because of increased war preparations in Europe shot prices upward four cents a bushel at the opening today.

The steep rise attracted selling, however, and prices reacted about a cent at times.

Opening 2⅞ to 4 cents higher, Dec. 68½-69¼, May 69-69½, Chicago wheat prices later lost about a cent. Corn started 1⅞ to 3 cents higher, December 52-52½, May 54¼-55.

Pirates' Lead Pared To Two Games; Greenberg Closes In

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

So it can't happen here, eh? So no club could ever do what the Pirates of '21 did—kick away a six-game lead in the closing days of a pennant fight? And no slugger, particularly a right-handed batsman, could come down the September stretch to equal Babe Ruth's 60-homer record of 1927?

Remember those Pirates of 17 years back? That team was just about "in" with the pennant, then had the door slammed in its face. And remember the Babe in September '27. He waved that big wagon tongue for 17 homers in that 30-day stretch.

Well, there's more than an outside chance that the Pirates of today, particularly after that 12-inning beating they absorbed from Cincinnati's Reds yesterday, will put ditto marks in the record books. That defeat, coupled with the pair of decisions the second-place Chicago Cubs took from the Phillies, sliced the Bucs' league lead to two games, and what's more important, left the Pirates with six games with the Reds and three with the Cubs still to play.

Nine Games To Go

Then there's big Hank Greenberg, who clouted his 55th and 56th homers of the season yesterday, even though the Detroit Tigers were handed a double whipping by Cleveland. That left him with nine more starts to reach the mark.

Bucky Walters was the big noise in the Pittsburgh firing. He held the Bucs to seven hits over the 12 innings, and won his own ball game, 5-4, with a run-producing single.

In Philadelphia, Augie Galan's eighth-inning homer gave the Cubs a 3-2 decision in the opener, and Rip Collins' two doubles and four runs batted in turned the trick, 7-6, in the nightcap. Each time the Cubs came from behind.

All this left the situation like this:

Club	W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
Pittsburgh	83	58	.589
Chicago	82	61	.573	2
New York	77	64	.546	6
Cincinnati	77	64	.546	6

In the lone American league larruping, the Indians took the Tigers 8-1, in the opener, with Bobby Feller tossing a six-hitter, fanning 10, and (surprise) walking only one. Ken Keltner drove in four runs in a 6-5 nightcap victory that was ended by darkness after seven innings.

POTTERS CRUSH EAST PALESTINE IN SECOND GRIDIRON ENCOUNTER

Locals' Attack Productive Of 6 Touchdowns

Coach Morbito Uses Three Teams In Encounter

By GEORGE M. VINCENT
Sports Editor, The Review

The Potters of East Liverpool High school were transformed into wild men Friday night at Patterson stadium, overpowering East Palestine's eleven and crushing it under a 39-0 count to chalk up their second triumph of the campaign.

Three full teams, all the men he had in uniform on the bench, were sent into action by Coach Joe Morbito and it was plenty difficult to see where the first stringers left off and the second and third stringers started.

Palestine put up a stubborn opposition in the first quarter but after that the sheer man power of the local forces swept it off its feet.

The Potters reeled off 227 yards from rushing the ball, registered 198 from passing it and, bringing in the gains on intercepted passes, punt and kickoff returns, rolled up a total yardage of 534. Penalties amounting to 98 yards and losses from scrimmage of two yards cut 100 off the figure for the net gain.

Palestine was able to advance the ball by rushing it only 53 yards and was pushed back 35. The visitors' total yardage went to 185 but 70 of that was returning seven Liverpool kickoffs.

Touchdowns Divided

Touchdown honors were well divided, no man getting more than one. Davis scored the first one midway in the first quarter, breaking away on the 41-yard line for a neat dash. He tried to cut through left tackle, couldn't find an opening so went on around end, shaking off a couple of would-be tacklers while he was about it. He then cut back toward the middle of the field, sidestepping a couple of the secondary and was away.

A forward pass by John Ward, who incidentally showed plenty of stuff while carrying the mail, to Yeager set up the second score. With the ball on the local 33, Ward stepped back to the 20 and let fly. Yeager reached out and snagged it on the Palestine 38, evaded a couple of foemen and dashed to the 10 before be was overtaken. Hughes bucked for three and Ward failed to gain but he tossed a pass to Sanford in the end zone for the marker.

Two plays later Tom Taylor, alert Potter center, got a thrill some linemen never experience. On the first play after the kickoff Palestine risked a pass from its own 19. Taylor bagged it on the 37 and cut down the sidelines unmolested to make the score 19-0.

Eight Plays To Score

A drive straight down the field, that took only eight plays, brought the fourth touchdown at the start of the second half. Davis returned the kickoff 23 yards to the local 35 and then he and Dray punched for three successive first downs to the Palestine nine. Dray crashed between left guard and tackle from there, going across standing up and carrying about three Palestine gridders with him.

Palestine punted after the next kickoff and several plays later McGraw took a pass from Ward that was good for 31 yards and put the pigskin on the Palestine 15. Ward knifed to the 10 and Hughes smashed through to the payoff stripe on two attempts. Hughes also gave the crowd a thrill with his battering drive while he was in the fray, taking up right where Dray left off.

Ward sparked the drive for the sixth and final touchdown. He carried the ball from his own 48 to Palestine's 39. After a five-yard penalty he tossed a pass to Oliver for a first down on the 23. In two more plays John took it to the three and the third quarter ended. McVey then took his place in the lineup and cracked right tackle for the concluding count.

Potential Passing Star

Three 15 yard penalties and interceptions of two passes kept the third team from scoring in the closing frame but the play uncovered a brilliant passing prospect in Sophomore McVey. He stood back there, cool and collected, with all the confidence of a veteran, picked his spot and then let fly. He completed three to Bruno in the space of five plays and almost clicked on about three more later.

While the scoring punch was pretty to watch, the charging and blocking and the sure and hard tackling was the outstanding feature of the game. The line was opening up huge holes, moving up fast, and it looked like every one of the 33 boys who participated in the rout had been fed raw meat for weeks. There was no holding any of them back. The fact that the foe was thrown for losses aggregating 35 yards attests to the defensive brilliance of all three lines used.

The wholesale penalties inflicted on Liverpool was a bad feature, but as was noted three of the big ones came in the last quarter when the younger and less experienced youths were in the fray. Their overzealousness possibly can be overlooked this time.

Overconfidence Feared

There is one danger which arises from the encounter. It might tend to let overconfidence sway the judgment of the boys. If they keep up the fight and show a little more improvement each week they may be classed as a winner. The next three weeks will tell the tale. Akron West, Salem and New Philadelphia are coming up and they are going to be tougher and tougher.

Palestine, though fairly weighty, hasn't a fast team by any manner of means. It is inexperienced and should be classed as a setup for a team with the man power boasted by the locals. It's going to be a big jump from Palestine to Akron West next Friday.

East End Aggregation Hands Downtown Reverse

The East End football team, with Marcus Jarrett performing some brilliant running, handed the Downtown eleven a 28-0 defeat in the opening grade school encounter, played as a preliminary to the high school encounter at Patterson stadium Friday night.

Jarrett scored all four of the victors' touchdowns, each on long runs, and added two extra points.

Sillience, who also demonstrated a neat brand of play both on offense and defense added the other two points.

Ellwood City Gridders' Power Too Much For Bengal Eleven

Ellwood City, Pa., High school's grid gladiators, exhibiting a bruising power attack, handed Wellsville's inexperienced Bengal eleven a humiliating 32-0 defeat in their second game at Nicholson stadium Friday night.

Holding an overwhelming weight advantage, the Pennsylvanians were just too much for the light Wellsville aggregation with its lack of veteran gridders.

Ellwood City rolled up 17 first downs to Wellsville's four while scoring two touchdowns in the second frame and one in each of the others.

Newton crashed over from the four-yard line after Wellsville fumbled on its own 12 in the opening stanza. Sahre hit left tackle from the one to score the second touchdown after his mates had driven from their own 19.

Ellwood City marched straight down the field after the next kickoff, Jones bucking over. Lewis scored the fourth marker, skirting left end for five yards, after another Wellsville fumble had given Ellwood City the ball on the 20. A pass interception, a lateral pass display that netted 20 yards put Murphy in position to score the final touchdown from the two.

Wellsville fought hard all the way but the odds were too great. The Bengals threatened toward the close, a 44-yard pass from Jack to Bill Call giving them the ball on the foe's 25 but another pass got away from Gullace in the end zone.

Today's Collegiate Grid Inaugurals Present Some Topnotch Encounters

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—That bang resounding from coast to coast today wasn't an echo from Europe but merely the opening of the 1938 football season.

A dozen or more teams that annually rank among the best in the country were paired off. No one could predict what might happen, but about 250,000 fans were expected to be on hand for the six top attractions to find out for themselves.

The day's biggest contests and probable crowds were:

Alabama-Southern California at Los Angeles (70,000); California-St. Mary's at Berkeley (60,000); Minnesota-Washington at Minneapolis (50,000); Pittsburgh-West Virginia at Pittsburgh (30,000); Illinois-Ohio university at Urbana (22,000), and Louisiana State-Mississippi at Baton Rouge (20,000).

There were plenty of interesting clashes to care for the overflow throngs. The west coast, for example, had Washington State-Oregon; the southwest had Texas Christian-Centenary and Oklahoma A. and M.-Arkansas, and the midwest offered such "mid-season" games as Purdue-Detroit, Washington university (St. Louis) vs. Vanderbilt, and Kansas-Texas.

Friday night battles, sharing the Saturday hoopla, produced some surprisingly close results.

Temple's Owls barely eked out a 6-0 decision over Albright, Bucknell whipped Furman, 28-6, Auburn beat Birmingham-Southern 14-0 in the best southern game. The most surprising midwestern result saw Bradley Tech beat St. Louis university, 6-0, Iowa State invaded the Rocky Mountain district to whip Denver, 14-7. Forty thousands fans saw U. C. L. A. defeat Iowa, 27-3, at Los Angeles.

CHESTER GRIDDERS, ALUMNI ELEVEN IN DEADLOCKED GAME

CHESTER HIGH'S grid aggregation battled an alumni eleven to a 6-6 deadlock Friday at Chester, staving off defeat with a sterling last quarter drive.

The alumni scored in the opening frame. O. Amedio threw a flat pass to Skolny who ran 50 yards for the touchdown.

The two teams fought hard for an advantage through the next two frames but to little avail until the final quarter when the high school drive started. It was climaxed by Archer, who did the bulk of the ground gaining, going over from the two.

Archer, Caldwell, Conklin, D. Chaney, Allison, Colbert and White stood out for the undergraduates. Walker, Coe, Skolny, H. Chaney were the alumni stars.

The summary:

COLUMBIANA ELEVEN UPSETS SALINEVILLE

COLUMBIANA, Sept. 24—Columbiana's gridders, showing plenty of strength, handed Salineville a 14-0 reverse in their inaugural tilt here Friday afternoon.

The locals scored first in the second frame when Stevens plunged from the two-yard line, fumbled and Howell recovered in the end zone. In the closing period, Columbiana drove from its own 40 to the Salineville six from where Burkle scored on an off-tackle slash. Dunbar placekicked both extra points.

Salineville registered nine first downs to the victors' eight, but six were chalked up in a last ditch drive that carried the ball from one 20-yard line to the other and ended on a pass interception.

Notre Dame Eleven Faces Suicide Schedule

By The Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 23.—Coach Elmer Layden is whistling these days—but he sounds suspiciously like the small boy who whistled to buoy his courage as he scurried past the graveyard at eventide.

A breath-taking nine game schedule, some Notre Dame loyalists fear, well may develop into a graveyard of Irish hopes. For with a squad composed largely of inexperienced candidates, Coach Layden may have a tough time preventing Kansas from writing the first paragraph of the Notre Dame "obituary" one week from tomorrow—and after Kansas will come one powerful adversary after another to haunt the Layden crew.

Striving to find a workable unit as he drills some 100 candidates daily, Layden says he is not disheartened.

"There isn't any use in worrying about a schedule which anyone will admit is a difficult one," he says. "We've been lucky in past years, winning games by one point margins and having boys develop quickly to plug gaps. Maybe we'll be lucky this year—and if we aren't we'll always be in their fighting."

Notre Dame spirit may play a great part in the success or failure of the 1938 Irish campaign. Layden purposely refrains from naming a "first" team. He wants his men to realize that ability is enough to make them regulars—and that classification is what they constantly are battling for.

In the past three years Notre Dame teams have won 25 games, lost eight and tied three, and spirit gained many of those triumphs.

Only two of the 1937 regulars, Tackle Ed Beinor and Fullback Joe Thesing, are on the 1938 squad. There are 26 reserves from last season all with some experience. Layden predicted before practice opened that he'd have more trouble developing a defense than an offense, and sessions to date have borne him out. He has a flock of halfbacks, outstanding of which are Harry Stevenson, Bob Saggau, a sophomore, Ben Sheridan, Lou Zontoni and Mike Corgan, but he is encountering difficulties in building a line with capable replacements.

Layden considers this year's Irish schedule more difficult than last, when his team won six, lost two and tied one. Here are the 'tombstones" Notre Dame will have to hurdle:

Oct. 1.—Kansas at Notre Dame; Oct. 8—Georgia Tech at Atlanta; Oct. 15—Illinois at Notre Dame; Oct. 22—Carnegie Tech at Notre Dame; Oct. 29—Army at New York; Nov. 5—Navy at Baltimore; Nov. 12—Minnesota at Notre Dame; Nov. 19—Northwestern at Evanston; Dec. 3—Southern California at Los Angeles.
